Truman Asks Congress for Strengthened Rent Control

GOP Leadership Approves Most Of Proposals to Provide Housing

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday called upon Congress to continue and strengthen rent control and enact both short-term and long-range housing programs.

With the exception of a request for 500,000 public housing units in five years and some features of his rent control proposal, the Chief Executive's message is closely in line with legislation likely to be sponsored by the GOP-controlled Congress.

Republican leaders yesterday indicated that most of Mr. Truman's proposals, with the exception of public housing, have an excellent chance of passage.

Slum Clearance Proposals

Toward slum clearance, President Truman adopted the same approach advocated by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, jr. (R., Wis.), vice chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Housing, who is preparing an over-all housing bill.

Mr. Truman agreed that major expenditures for slum clearance should be deferred at present, a philosophy already incorporated in the McCarthy proposal, which would make slum clearance a public works program as a bulwark against depression.

The President also incorporated the GOP-backed idea that local authorities should supplement Federal funds in slum clearance projects.

Terming the Chief Executive's message "a very good one," McCarthy declared that Mr. Truman had removed most of the housing problem from the field of partisan politics.

President Truman called for an annual average of more than one million new houses and apartments in urban areas for the next 10 years, and additional rural dwellings.

Throughout his message he spoke of the "substandard dwellings" in which many families must live because of the acute shortage of housing.

He laid especial emphasis upon the shortage of houses to rent, pointing out that although nearly one million housing units were constructed in 1947, only 15 per cent were for rental purposes.

Five Objectives Sought

The President asked Congress to enact legislation with five objectives:

1. To continue and strengthen rent control.
2. To stimulate a higher volume of home building on a sustained basis, with special emphasis on rental housing and with proper safeguards against possible inflationary effects.
3. To reduce building costs.
4. To assist communities in providing low-rent housing for families in the lowest-income groups.
5. To aid cities in rebuilding and modernizing run-down areas.

The Chief Executive asked for the extension of rent control through April 30, 1949, with greater

Sen. Taylor Agrees to Run With Wallace

'Crooning Cowboy's' Bolt From Democrat Party Long Expected

Senator Glen H. Taylor, Idaho's "Singing Cowboy," yesterday quit the Democratic Party to become the vice presidential candidate on Henry A. Wallace's third party ticket.

Taylor

The bolt had long been expected. The 43-year-old Idahoan has consistently opposed the Administration's foreign policy and supported Wallace in calling for appeasement of Russia.

Taylor's announcement was made in a radio broadcast (CBS) with Wallace, onetime Republican, then Democrat, sitting across the table from him.

Stresses Fight for Peace

"I am going to cast my lot with Henry Wallace in his brave and gallant fight for peace," declared Taylor, in a speech reminiscent of an old-time revival meeting.

The new party, Taylor told reporters after the broadcast, will probably be called "The Progressive Party," in the "great tradition" of Bob LaFollette and Theodore Roosevelt.

Wallace spoke just once during the broadcast. Toward the close of his speech Taylor queried:

"Henry Wallace, do you remember the day I took my seat in the Senate? You, as Vice President, administered to me the oath to support and defend the Constitution and you were the first to shake my hand. And do you remember what I told you then?"

"I surely do, Glenn," replied Wallace.

"I said," Taylor continued, "Mr. Wallace for years I have been a great admirer of yours. I like a man who is sincere and honest."

Taylor said he was not leaving the Democratic Party—"it left me."

Can Use Red Vote

Far from renouncing the support of Communists, Taylor said, he'd be "glad to have their votes."

Then he added, "I'm trying to get elected. I'd be glad to have the votes of bank robbers, too."

But he said no matter who supported him he would try to do what he thought right.

Taylor told reporters he believed Henry Wallace was the only man who could bring peace with Russia.

"I believe that Russia would believe in Henry Wallace's good intentions," Taylor said. He added that if Wallace were elected, he believed that Russia wouldn't be "so severe" with her neighbors.

Wallace's running mate said it was not Russia, but the United States which is pursuing an aggressive policy.

Bargain Sales Jam Stores On Holiday

Official observance of George Washington's birthday yesterday was a bit hectic.

Thousands packed Washington's downtown area for the traditional clearance sales to buy cut-rate fur coats and 99-cent typewriters.

More thousands jammed into trains, planes and buses leaving and arriving here.

An uncounted number got bounced around in more than 30 traffic accidents on glazed District streets.

It was a holiday—and it wasn't in Greater Washington schools. District and Arlington schools were closed. They were open in Montgomery, Prince Georges and Fairfax Counties. Alexandria schools had a half day.

Like Christmas Season

Most spectacular feature of the day by far was the shopping throng which moved on the downtown area for the morning clearance sales. Police, who were stationed at every corner, said it was just like the Christmas season.

The executive of one large department store said his store was filled to "absolute capacity."

A typewriter concern advertised five-used typewriters "still in good working condition" for sale at 99 cents apiece. More than 1000 persons were waiting in line when the store opened. A police detail was sent to the store to keep the bargain-hunters from breaking down the doors.

Women jammed into fur stores which had advertised reductions. Fur coats once labeled at $100 were going for $5. Women started lining up outside one fur mart Saturday night for the Sunday morning opening.

Believed New Records Set

One department store reported its business "the most we have ever had in a few hours." There were no estimates on sales receipts, but several store officials predicted they would set records for the annual Washington's birthday clearance.

Most of the stores closed at 1 p. m. after which an air of holiday normalcy began to creep over the downtown sector.

The weather was good for shopping—above the freezing mark. It reached a high of 36 at 1:50 p. m. after an ascent from a low of 25 at 6:52 a. m.

The same sort of weather will prevail today. This morning will be mostly clear with the temperature in the middle 20s. During the day the sun will be out and the mercury will be in the low 40s. Tomorrow will be cloudy, followed by rain.

Downtown merchants probably will join in a vote of thanks to William A. Xanten, superintendent of the city refuse division and boss of snow removal in the District, for clearing most of the snow from the important shopping streets.

Xanten said his men completed most of the snow removal Sunday night. Some snow which remained, he said, was melted by yesterday's sun and will probably be further depleted by the sun today.

For that matter, highways in Maryland and Virginia were also

Steel Curbs Are Proposed By O'Mahoney

Recent Price Hikes Viewed as Inviting Government Control

The recent concerted action of Big Steel in raising prices virtually invites Congress to declare the steel industry a public utility, Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) said tonight.

He said in a formal statement that the price hike indicates that United States Steel 'has a virtual monopoly" and that he would sponsor a bill containing "two immediate essentials to the public interest."

These were:

1. Adoption of an excess profits tax.
2. An appropriation sufficient to permit the Federal Tax Commission to publicize the methods used by big business managers to drive up prices and exploit the public.

GOP Action Questioned

O'Mahoney said legislative action is necessary because it is "evident" that the Republican-controlled Joint Congressional Economic Committee "will allow some of the spokesmen for Big Steel to attempt to whitewash themselves," rather than investigate the facts.

The committee has scheduled a hearing on the steel price increase for March 2. It originally was set for Thursday.

The Wyoming Senator, long-time campaigner against monopoly, said:

"The action of the steel industry in announcing a second big increase of prices within the past six months indicates that United States Steel has established a virtual monopoly in the industry to which all little and local business and all consumers are subject.

"By their indefensible action they are virtually asking Congress to declare the steel industry a public utility."

Probe Already Demanded

He said he would seek to have restored to the Federal Trade Commission budget $185,000 knocked out by the House. And, he added, he was prepared to introduce a bill to restore excess profits taxes. Of this he said:

"This provision will be designed to force big business to decide either to cut prices, so that little business and local business throughout the United States, as well as all consumers, may benefit, or be prepared to turn their excessive profits over to the Govern-

Southerners Fail in Appeal To McGrath

Governors Group Renew Threats Of Revolt Over Civil Rights Issue

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath yesterday politely but firmly rejected Southern Democratic demands that he help shelve the President's civil rights program.

In a 90-minute "friendly" interview with a committee of Southern Democratic Governors, McGrath answered six different demands with as many variations of the one word, "No."

The Southern Governors group, headed by Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, studied a stenographic transcript of McGrath's replies, then appealed for support "from Democrats everywhere who are opposed to centralized Government invading the rights of the people and the rights of the respective States."

Revolt Threats Reported

Their statement concluded:

"The southern States are aroused and the present leadership of the Democratic Party will soon realize that the South is 'no longer in the bag.'

"Each Southern State, under the framework of an over-all program, will work out the most effective means of resisting the proposals of the present leadership of the party, but resist them we will."

One associate of the group said he believed "the die of Southern revolt is cast" and the interview with McGrath was "just to make a record." He said the Governors were impressed, however, by McGrath's "cordial" treatment.

Lane Attends Meeting

Governor Thurmond told reporters his committee will file a report and recommendations with the Southern Governors' Conference at a time and place to be set by Governor William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland, chairman of the conference.

The full conference at a meeting in Tallahassee, Fla., on February 7 issued what amounted to an ultimatum to the Administration to back away from its civil rights stand.

Governor Lane sat in with the four-man Thurmond group during the McGrath interview, at the committee's invitation, but took no part in framing the demands.

Besides Thurmond, actively participating in the showdown with McGrath were Governor R. Gregg Cherry of North Carolina, Governor Ben Laney of Arkansas and Governor Beauford H. Jester of Texas, members of the special committee.

"I'm glad we had the conference," said McGrath. "I hope it will serve to clear up some misunderstandings."

Hopes for Settlement

Asked about the prospect of an "amicable" settlement, McGrath said he was hopeful of that "eventually."

While refusing to budge from any of the President's 10 civil rights points, McGrath told the Southern Governors:

"I just hope that somehow in our deliberations as time goes on and when we weigh specific proposals that come before Congress, we will have a happy reunion in the not too distant future.

"As time goes on I know it is bad for our morale and hurts the spirit of party workers in other States. I think the South has much to gain in playing along with the

Charge National Socialist Plot; Benes Promises Parliament Rule

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 23 (U.P.).—Communist-led police seized the headquarters of the leftwing National Socialist Party and arrested seven moderate political leaders today in a series of armed raids which began before dawn.

The raids, and a statement by the Communist-controlled Interior Ministry that the Nationalist Socialists were plotting a revolution, climaxed a political crisis in wnich the Communists appeared to be seeking total power.

Foreign Travel Banned

As their police, newly armed with carbines and tommy guns, swept through the capital, Communist officials forbade all foreign travel by Czechs except by permission of the Interior Ministry.

President Eduard Benes appealed to the country to remain calm and declared tonight that a "parliamentary government" would be formed.

The Communists have been demanding formation of a cabinet representing only the Communists and the Social Democrats. Such a government would be "parliamentary"—the powerful Communists and the relatively weak Social Democrats together would have a majority of Parliament.

Predictions Are Upset

The Social Democrats upset political predictions today by agreeing to discuss formation of an all-Marxist government. They insisted, however, that any new cabinet must respect "the principles of parliamentary democracy."

[Benes' office announced that he would address the nation in a broadcast within the next few days, the Associated Press said in a Prague dispatch. It said the announcement was made before the Social Democrats' decision had been made known.

Withdraw from Cabinet

[The Social Democrats' action was the chief development in the cabinet crisis, which began Friday when the three chief anti-Communist parties—the Czech National Socialist, the Slovak Democrats and the Catholic People's Party—withdrew their representatives from the cabinetbecause of a dispute over alleged Communist domination of the Security Police.

[President Benes has thus far refused to accept the resignations or to permit appointment of Communists to replace them, the New York Herald Tribune's Prague correspondent reported.—Editor's Note.]

A Social Democrat spokesman denied tonight that his party had been warned by Communist Premier Klement Gottwald to announce its adherence to the cabinet by 6:45 p. m., or face the consequences of being a "party of reaction."

[The Associated Press said the Prague radio quoted Gottwald as saying: "The Government crisis may be solved in the next few hours. It certainly will be solved in the next few days.]

A crowd of nearly 10,000 people formed in the street outside Hradcany Palace, Benes' official residence, after dark tonight to hear the President's comment on the crisis. A five-man delegation went into the palace to receive the message.

[Several hours after police raided the headquarters of the National Socialist Party, Dr. Vladimir Krajina, party secretary general, en-

Crucial Debate On Palestine Opens Today

Fate of Partition And Perhaps of U. N. Is Seen at Stake

Lake Success, N. Y., Feb. 23 (U.P.).—The great Palestine debate opens in the United Nations Security Council tomorrow with the fate of Holy Land partition—and perhaps that of the entire U. N.—at stake.

The outcome hinged largely on the position assumed by the United States when the delegates of 11 nations sit down at 10:30 a. m. to discuss whether to send an international U. N. army to enforce Palestine's division into Arab and Jewish states.

Conflict Impends

Final preparations fo rthe meeting were completed in an atmosphere which boded conflict—conflict between the western countries and Russia, between the angry Arab states and the U. N., between the U. N.'s strong pro-partition governments and Great Britain.

U. N. diplomats appeared agreed tonight that the largest factor would be the American stand. At least part of the American position, reached after weeks of super-secret conferences by President Truman and his Administration, will be unveiled in the Council tomorrow by American Delegate Warren Austin.

Fervent speculation failed to cut through the mantle of secrecy pulled around the American decision.

The best guess—and it was strictly a guess—was that Austin would indicate in the Council tomorrow support for a revision of the embargo on arms shipments to the Middle East and possible support later for some kind of U. N. force. Revision of the embargo would permit nations like the United States to supply arms to Jewish elements in the Holy Land—perhaps in the hope that this would be sufficient to thwart the Arab world's threatened "holy war" against partition.

Handed Him by Marshall

Austin returned from Washington tonight after an all-day conference in which Secretary of State George C. Marshall handed him the Government's decision, approved by Mr. Truman in a message from his vacation spot in the Caribbean.

Austin's statement tomorrow will revolve around the emergency report of the U. N. Palestine Commission, which calls on the Security Council to provide an international

Truman 'Wins' 2d Voteless Virgin Island

Bands, Bells, Poets Unite in Hearty St. Croix Welcome

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

With President Truman in the Caribbean, Feb. 23.—President Truman, now bound for Cuba aboard the Yacht USS Williamsburg, "carried" another of the voteless Virgin Islands today.

Landing at St. Croix, largest in the group, he was given an all-out welcome. Band music and church bells rang out, poets took wing, calypso singers serenaded him, and school children bracketed the name of Harry S. Truman with those of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Strangely, there was no mention of St. Croix' most famous son, Alexander Hamilton.

A triumphal arch in Christiansed carried these words in two-foot letters:

"Mr. President, we are with you in November."

Landslide for Truman

Sentimentally, it was a landslide for Mr. Truman. From a practical political standpoint, it was without meaning in the island; for the nearly all-Negro population of 14,000 in St. Croix, like the citizens of Washington, D. C., have no choice in a presidential election.

The highlight of the day, from a musical standpoint, came at a luncheon given in Mr. Truman's honor by Ward Canaday, chairman of the board of the Willys-Overland Co., makers of the famous jeep. This was held on the terrace of Mr. Canaday's home, a remodeled windmill perched on a mountainside and framed by bougainvillaea and hybiscus.

A Virgin Island type of calypso band, its members lounging under a gooseberry tree, played for the presidential party.

Calypso Serenade

One of the "musicians" tooted a bazooka-like length of gaspipe. Another beat on a lard can. The remaining members played a gourd, a brass triangle, two guitars and a banjo.

A singer, composing as he went along, chanted such lines as "Harry Truman is a good man," meantime pounding out a jungle-like accompaniment on a lard can.

Mr. Truman grinned broadly, although it must have hurt him to do it. As a result of exposure to the tropical sun in Puerto Rico and yesterday at St. Thomas, his face is now a lobster color, and hurts.

He has been doing two things

Talmadge Forces Ruled Rightful Party Leaders

Atlanta, Feb. 23 (AP).—Herman Talmadge adherents won legal control of Georgia Democratic Party machinery today, ending 10 months of contest and confusion.

The State Supreme Court held unanimously that a State party organization aligned with the son of the late Eugene Talmadge is the rightful claimant to party power.

A rival faction of Gov. M. E. Thompson—tacitly recognized by national Democratic officials—was ruled without official or legal standing.

The court decided today that James S. Peters, Talmadge lieutenant, is the legal State chairman, instead of William S. Morris, Thompson man.

Prisoners' Uprising Feared In Prince Georges County Jail

Baltimore, Feb. 23 (AP).—A report today by the State Board of Correction said inspectors found such unrest among prisoners at the Prince Georges County jail that "only a spark is needed to set the explosion off."

The report for 1947 noted that, except for painting and some plumbing installations, few physical improvements have been made at any of Maryland's 23 county jails since 1946.

[William A. Carson, president of the Prince Georges County board of commissioners, declined to comment on the report last night, saying that he had not received a copy.

[Unrest in the jail was highlighted last December 10 when four prisoners overpowered Jailer Vincent Wells and made their escape. Wells was severely beaten by the four and has not returned to duty since.]

Sanitary conditions in the jails range from "very dirty" in Frederick County, to "very clean" in Allegany, the report based on surveys by Wallace Reidt, jail inspector, noted.

The report had this to say about the Prince Georges jail at Upper Marlboro:

"There was considerable unrest at the jail at the time of inspection.

"There was constant complaint about food, lack of medical atten-

Bar Leaders Urge Rejection Of Tamm Court Nomination

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

District Bar Association leaders last night urged the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee to reject the nomination of Edward Allen Tamm to be associate justice of the District Court.

Leading the opposition to Tamm were three past presidents of the bar association; Hugh H. Obear, John Lewis Smith and Milton W. King. They testified as spokesman for the local bar association's committee on judicial selections.

As they testified, Tamm sat quietly at the committee table. He declined however to take up the offer of subcommittee chairman Forrest C. Donnell, (R., Mo.), of a chance to cross-examine the witnesses.

The witnesses, however, ran into cross-examination from Donnell and subcommittee members John S. Cooper (R., Ky.), and Harley M. Kilgore.

An overflow crowd jammed the committee room. About 75 persons were present and a third of them were standing.

Obear cited the District Bar Association poll earlier this month in which 928 members voted against Tamm's confirmation and 173 favored it.

Said Obear, "While our association does feel aggrieved that the Attorney General did not see fit to receive our suggestions, we wish to make clear that our opposition is based on the appointee's lack of qualification for judicial office."

Tamm's backers, including Senators Styles Bridges, (R., N. H.), and Brien McMahon, (D., Conn.), Justice Department officials and others, had testified in earlier hearings that Tamm is an able lawyer and well qualified to be a judge. He has been in the FBI for 18 years. As assistant to the director, he ranks as No. 3 G-man.

Obear declared, however, that "it is the very firm belief of our committee that Tamm's experience is not the sort that would qualify him for admission to the bar of the District Court to which he is now nominated as a judge."

He added that while Tamm is surely a fine person, it is "not fair to the people of the District to place a man lacking trial experience on our court."

Smith told the subcommittee that no Republican has been appointed to the District Court for the last 15 years. He said that Presidents Hoover and Coolidge had appointed almost as many Democrats as Republicans.

"In 1933 the court was nearly evenly balanced," said Smith. "It is now unbalanced and I am in

Big 3 Gives Low Countries Voice on Western Germany

London, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Big Three Western powers today granted Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg a voice in vital discussions on the role western Germany will play in the Marshall Plan for European recovery.

The United States, Britain and France swiftly adopted a seven-point agenda for their talks. The subjects ranged from discussion of reparations to control of the mineral rich Ruhr Valley and western Germany's future frontiers.

Russia was absent and uninvited. Coincident with the opening of the talks, Britain rejected Soviet protests against the conference and charged that Russian opposition to working out a genuine economic unity of Germany had imposed a heavy burden upon the other wartime Allies.

It was still uncertain whether Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—the Benelux countries—would be given full partnership in the conference.

Official sources said, however, that the three nations would be given full rights of participation on all questions of Germany affecting them.

The agenda agreed upon for the conference:

1. Association of the Benelux countries in policy regarding Germany.
2. Relationship of western Germany under the occupying powers

Soviet Army Head Says Weapons Are Most Modern

Moscow, Feb. 23 (U.P.).—Marshall Nikolai Bulganin, Minister for the Armed Forces, said tonight in an Army Day speech at the Bolshoi Theater that the Soviet Army had completed its conversion to a peacetime basis but was being re-equipped with the most modern weapons.

Bulganin said American, British and French "war mongers" were planning a third world war in order to get themselves out of economic and political difficulties.

"But the Soviet Union wants no war and seeks to establish the most friendly relatioins with all countries which fulfill their obligations," he said.

Marshal Josef Stalin, looking in fine health, was among those on the stage.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Gov. William H. Hastie

President Truman's host on his visit to the Virgin Islands is Gov. William H. Hastie, whose Washington friends still refer to him as "Judge."

Gov. Hastie

Now only 43, he was the first Negro to hold a Federal judgeship. That was when he was 32. And he is the first Negro ever to govern the Virgin Islands.

Born in Knoxville, Tenn., on November 17, 1904, he was brought to Washington at the age of 8 and was graduated from Dunbar High School in 1921. Four years later he received his A. B. degree with Phi Beta Kappa honors at Amherst College.

Although he had majored in mathematics at Amherst, two lawyer cousins turned him to law. He won his LL.B. and S. J. D. at Harvard where he served on the Law Review.

From 1934-37 he was assistant solicitor of the Interior Department; from 1937-39 Federal district judge of the Virgin Islands, and in 1939 became dean of the Howard University Law School.

During the war he was a civilian aide to former Secretary of War Stimson. He resigned that post in protest against "discriminatory practices" of the Army Air Forces. He returned to Howard University.

In May 1946 the Senate confirmed his nomination as governor of the Virgin Islands. Governor Hastie is married to a native of the Virgin Islands and is the father of a three-year-old daughter.

Dr. Elmer Raymond Arn

You may never have heard of Dr. Elmer Raymond Arn—unless you're from Dayton, Ohio.

And then again, if you're a Mason from almost any part of the country, you're pretty sure to recognize the name. The good doctor has been president of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial headquarters here for nine years running.

Dr. Arn

Yesterday, in elections at the imposing National Masonic Temple in Alexandria, Dr. Arn was chosen for a tenth term. He was guest of honor last night at the association's annual banquet at the Temple.

Dr. Arn, a well known surgeon, was born in Arnhelm, Ohio, July 8, 1886. He took his M.D. from the University of Cincinnati, and followed it up with post-graduate work at the Universities of Berlin and Vienna. Since 1912 he has practiced in Dayton, his home.

Energetic Dr. Arn, finding his medical practice left a little time open for other activities, became active in Masonic work many years ago. A 33d degree Mason, he is also a former Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ohio, and a member of the board of trustees of the Ohio Masonic Home.

He has also found time to serve as president of the Dayton Philharmonic Orchestra, to accept membership on the board of trustees of Miami Valley Hospital, to join the Dayton Rotary Club, and to write articles on his medical specialty, goitre, to medical journals.

ADA to Support Liberals Regardless of Party Tags

Philadelphia, Feb. 23 (AP).—Americans for Democratic Action voted today to support liberal Congressmen "regardless of party label" and then elected as its chairman former OPA Chief Leon Henderson.

Following the most heated debate of the three-day national convention, ADA adopted a resolution "unreservedly" condemning the third party presidential candidacy of Henry A. Wallace.

The new political group voted down a resolution to "put a candle in the window for Wallace's followers" who the resolution said should be part of ADA.

ADA listed among its reasons for rejecting Wallace's candidacy that he is committed to defeat of the Marshall Plan, that his organizational support comes principally from the Communist Party and that he would betray wartime pledges.

"The introduction of third party candidates in congressional races," ADA said, "can serve only to elect an isolationist and reactionary Congress. . . . . The so-called Progressive Party would wilfully send the Nation on the road to reaction."

Henderson succeeds Wilson Wyatt, former national housing expediter and former Mayor of Louisville.

Elected vice chairmen were: Paul Porter, another former OPA head; Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., son of the late President; Hubert H. Humphrey, mayor of Minneapolis; George Edwards, president of Detroit City Council; Hugo Ernst, of Cincinnati, president of the AFL's Hotel and Restaurant Workers Union, and Emile Reive of New York, president of the CIO's Textile Workers Union.

Joseph L. Rauh, jr., former deputy housing administrator, was named chairman of the executive committee, and Louis H. Harris of New York was reelected treasurer.

The organization, described by retiring Chairman Wyatt as "independent, nonpartisan and non-Communist," adopted a political plank in which it announced support of liberal Congressmen in the November elections "regardless of party label."

To Await Conventions

The 500 delegates to ADA's first national convention agreed to take no action on a presidential choice until the major parties hold their conventions.

ADA's political platform, adopted today, called for abolition of the House Committee on Un-American Activities as "a proved threat to freedom on political opinion."

The ADA said it recognized the Government's "power to conduct investigation in any field of Federal interest" but added no one should be found guilty of disloyalty "without a fair hearing, based on specific written charges" and "a full opportunity to examine and cross-examine witnesses."

Included in its domestic policy platform were:

Opposition to all proposals to outlaw the Communist or any other political party; urging congressional and State action to abolish poll taxes; support of equal opportunities for all despite race, color, creed or national origins, and repeal of "discriminatory immigration laws."

D. C. Home Rule Bill Unanimously Indorsed

Americans for Democratic Action, meeting in national convention in Philadelphia, yesterday unanimously indorsed the Auchincloss home rule bill for the District.

The convention adopted a resolution presented by Mrs. Frances Adams, vice president of the Washington ADA chapter and convention delegate.

"This convention . . . goes on record in support of the principles now incorporated in the Auchincloss bill for District home rule and will do all in its power to urge its passage during the present session of Congress," the resolution declared.

Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) already has demanded a Justice Department investigation of the price rise. "It's difficult to see how different companies, with different operating locations and different costs, can always agree exactly on the same increase," he said.

Economic Advisers Worried

President Truman's economic advisers are worried. They fear the price increase has dashed hopes of holding the inflation line. They said the effects might be higher material costs for 40 per cent of industry—more costly automobiles, home appliances, etc.

Chairman Edwin G. Nourse and his two colleagues on the President's Economic Council have arranged closed meetings this week with steel and other industrial leaders to talk over the situation.

No Hint of Accord

But there was no hint of even a belated rapporchment in the Governors' parting blast.

"A vast majority of the Democrats of the South are determined to restore the Democratic Party to the principles of Jefferson and Jackson and will resort to whatever means are necessary to accomplish this end," said their statement.

"The Democrats of the South are united in their opposition to the so-called civil rights program proposed by the President and effective action in the Southern States will be taken to prevent adoption of the program."

Six questions, previously prepared and mimeographed, were presented to McGrath by the Governors in the showdown round at National headquarters.

Crisp Negatives at End

McGrath answered the first in some detail but near the end of the interview he got down to crisp negatives.

"No," he replied flatly when the Governors asked:

"Will you now, at a time when national unity is so vital to the solution of the problem of peace in the world, use your influence . . . to have the highly controversial civil rights legislation, which tends to divide our people, withdrawn from consideration by the Congress?"

He said, "I will not" when the Governors asked if he would help restore the two-thirds nominating rule in the next Democratic convention.

While he stuck to the letter of the President's civil rights program, their was a conciliatory tone in some of his earlier replies.

One Answer Pleases

For example, the Governors were obviously pleased with his answer to this question:

"Will you . . . oppose the establishment of a special Federal police agency such as the proposed Division of Civil Rights in the Department of Justice?"

"I will not oppose that," replied Mcrath, but hastened to add that particular recommendation -"political conditions in the South were the farthest from the President's mind."

"Stories have gone out that it was the intention to send out posses of officers to pick out instances where the people were denied the right to vote,' 'said McGrath. "Very definitely that is the farthest from the President's mind."

Palestine Partition Cited in Virginia

Richmond, Va., Feb. 23 (AP).—A resolution urging the Federal Government to permit Southern States to improve the relations between the races "in their own way" was introduced in the House of Delegates today.

Delegate John B. Boatwright of Buckinghm offered the resolution, which pointed out that the United States Government, through the United Nations, had approved a partition proposal in Palestine which would segregate the two principal groups into restricted areas.

2 Cough Up $125 For Robbery Tales They Cooked Up

Two Washingtonians paid money into the city's treasury yesterday for telling stories to police—and right around George Washington's birthday, too.

Bernard Gorland, 33, a merchant, of 1421 Somerset pl. nw., paid $100 collateral on a false report charge which he elected to forfeit. He told police he was held up and robbed of $428. When police found the sum hidden in his automobile, he admitted he made up the story to collect insurance.

Robert C. Callanan, 21, a clerk, of 103 Summerfield rd., Chevy Chase, Md., said he was robbed of $12, his shirt and undershirt. According to police, he later told them he made up this tale because he had been in a fight and didn't want his family to know of it. He posted and elected to forfeit $25 on a false report charge.

Island Head Greets Truman

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

THEY MEET AGAIN—William H. Hastie (right), Governor of the Virgin Islands, welcomes President Truman at the dock on the Chief Executive's visit there Sunday. Hastie was dean of the Howard University Law School here before Mr. Truman made him the first Negro Governor of the islands to ease the pain, applying a lotion and pulling his panama far down over his face when he is out in the blazing sun.

After the 40-mile run from St. Thomas this morning, the Chief Executive landed at Frederiksted, so named by the Danes when they owned the Virgins. A band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and cheers arose from a throng assembled in Customs Square. The children of St. Patrick's School, founded years ago by Irish missionaries, waved American flags.

Old Glory Waves

On a sightseeing tour of the island, driven from Fredericksted to Christiansted, Mr. Truman must have been moved by the patriotism of the islanders. The poorest of them was waving Old Glory.

In one village little girls dressed up as 'Miss Columbus." The girls of Christiansted school had tiara-like cardboard crowns with pictures of George Washington, whose birthday was being celebrated, and of Abraham Lincoln.

The President passed by the burial place of Rachel Fawcett Levine, mother of Alexander Hamilton. Also, in Christiansted, he passed the Alexander Hamilton Hardware and Supply Store, where that illustrious founding father worked as a boy. However, not once during the day was there any mention of Hamilton, either by Mr. Truman or by native orators.

The last time Mr. Truman alluded to Hamilton was at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Washington, when he denounced the great federalist's political philosophy and listed him as the forerunner of modern "reactionaries" who believe that government should be for the benefit of the "selfish few."

Thanks Islanders

In two talks today, the President thanked the islanders for their cordiality and promised to come back when he finished his service in the White House. He said he foresaw a real future for the Virgin Islands as a tourist paradise and promised to do all he could to promote the welfare of the people.

At one point, he said he had been told before he started that he "would not be cordially received in these islands." He said he was happy to have discovered that this was "simply not so."

Aides of Mr. Truman said that he must have been thinking, not about the Virgin Islands, but about earlier reports from Puerto Rico.

It had been forecast that he would be picketed in San Juan by advocates of independence.

The last thing in the world that the natives of the Virgin Islands want is independence, and they have made that very clear. They do want more help and more money out of the United States Treasury but not independence. As Mr. Truman observed, they are truly members of "the American family."

As he embarked on the Williamsburg this afternoon, Mr. Truman took along many gifts, including a second mahogany coffee table. The reporters and photographers were loaded down with gifts of St. Croix rum, chief product of the islands.

For the next 40 hours or so, the Williamsburg and the escort ship, the USS Greenwich Bay, will steam at slow speed through the Caribbean. The arrival at the Guantanamo Bay naval base, Cuba, is scheduled for Wednesday morning.

Sen. Tydings Suffers Pneumonia Attack

Senator Tydings (D., Md.) is a pneumonia patient in the United States Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md., it was disclosed yesterday. Hospital officials said his condition was "satisfactory."

Miss Corinne Barger, the Senator's secretary, said he was taken to the hospital Saturday. She said at first it was though the senior Senator from Maryland had a slight attack of influenza or grippe.

The first "Wallace-for-President" button flowered in a button-hole yesterday during Senator Glen H. Taylor's speech announcing himself as Wallace's running mate.

Millikin Committee Expected to Trim Big House Figure

By The Associated Press

The Senate will start drawing its own pattern for income tax cuts Monday, with the chief designers aiming at a slimmer figure than the fat $6,500,000,000 that came out of the House.

Chairman Millikin (R., Colo.), of the tax-writing Finance Committee, announced yesterday that the group had decided to start hearings Monday.

He added that he had told the committee, in the closed session at which the hearings were planned, that he believed the cut should be "somewhat less" than the House voted. He told reporters he had not decided how much less.

Knutson Bill Up

Nevertheless the House Knutson bill, with its $6,500,000,000 reduction for individual income taxpayers, will be the measure the Senate committee takes up. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, who has expressed opposition to so big a cut at this time, probably will be the first witness.

On the House side, Chairman Knutson (R., Minn.), called a meeting of the Ways and Means Committee today to discuss separate legislation for a general overhauling of the tax laws.

"We will discuss the scope of a general tax revision bill," Knutson said. "We will go as far this session as time permits in overhauling the tax laws."

The committee has held long hearings on such legislation, embracing proposals for changes in excise levies, socalled double taxation on corporate dividends, and taxes on cooperatives.

"Conservative" Measure

Millikin said he "stated the hope" in the Senate committee meeting that the Senate's bill "will be conservatively based so as to attract the widest possible support."

Predictions have been made by members of both houses that the Senate will vote a cut smaller than the House proposed, partly with the idea of attracting enough support to override a presidential veto.

That takes two-thirds of both houses. The House passed its bill with plenty of votes to spare. Knutson has expressed assurance the whole cut will go through and become law.

The Knutson bill would boost the individual income tax exemption from $500 to $600, and reduce the levy by amounts ranging from 30 per cent on the lowest taxable incomes to 10 per cent on the biggest. It also would allow husbands and wives to divide family income for tax purposes.

Home Builders' Head Opposes Controls

Chicago, Feb. 23 (AP).—The President of the National Association of Home Builders said today, "I do not think we want a continuation of rent controls."

Edward R. Carr, of Washington, told the NAHB annual convention, in discussing President Truman's request to Congress for rent controls:

"We can go along with some of Mr. Truman's points on housing.

"But as for rent controls, we have the example of France, where they have been in effect for 33 years. The building industry is dead there."

"Mr. Truman wants to stimulate a higher volume of rental housing construction. Well, in 1946 under Government controls only 12,000 rental units were constructed.

"In 1947, when all Government controls were taken off in midyear, 143,000 units were built. The answer is obvious."

law-enforcement authority and a larger staff for the housing expediter.

The Senate yesterday laid aside its rent-control extension bill to take up the St. Lawrence Seaway. It has already become clear that in order to meet the February 29 expiration date of the present rent law, Congress will agree to a 30-day extension, pending action on a new measure.

In order to stimulate the building of rental housing, Mr. Truman said, Congress should extend Title VI of the National Housing Act for one year, with an increase of two billion dollars of insurance authorization. This is a feature of the McCarthy proposal.

The President also asked that to increase the proportion of rental housing built under this title, the basis for insuring loans should be more liberal on property built for rent than for sale. The McCarthy measure bases insurance authorization for sale property on its long-term value, for rental property on current costs.

Low-Cost Housing Proposals

Under McCarthy's bill the same provisions would also cover Class III, Title I, housing units, which cover the cheaper types of houses in unimproved areas on which banks have been unwilling to give secondary mortgages.

The President asked that Congress further consolidate housing by placing secondary market authority in the Housing and Home Finance Agency. In substance this is already a provision of the McCarthy bill.

The President's message also called for an incentive for the construction low-cost rental housing in a yield insurance plan. The yield insurance plan developed by McCarthy already is backed by AMVETS.

In addition the McCarthy measure will provide for complete income tax exemption for direct investment in very low-cost housing, and for other investors a 50 per cent depreciation for income tax purposes for the first five years.

Allocation Power Asked

President Truman also called for authority to allocate materials in short supply. Little chance is seen of the GOP Congress meeting this request.

The message backed proposals similar to those already put forth on Capitol Hill for Government-sponsored research into building materials, building methods and reform of building codes.

The Chief Executive also recommended that Congress make special provision to insure loans to housing cooperatives. McCarthy disclosed yesterday that with the aid of veterans' groups he is drafting legislation to give Government-backed long-term low-interest loans to housing cooperatives, particularly veterans' coops.

House Home Rule Group to Meet

The House Home Rule Subcommittee will have an executive meeting at 4 p. m. tomorrow in the office of Chairman James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) This meeting, originally set for yesterday, was called to discuss the subcommittee program for reviewing proposed changes in the Washington home rule bill.

tion and complaints about the exorbitant prices being charged for bringing things into the jail.

"Prisoners were unruly and the jailer was clearly apprehensive.

"There were complaints that messages from relatives and attorneys were not being given to the prisoners and all of the criticism was being directed against one of the jailers.

"A subsequent visit was made to this institution and the impressions gained at the first visit were confirmed.

"There is . . . likely to be a great deal of trouble at this jail if the situation is not remedied.

"Just prior to the last visit a woman prisoner had been roughly handled by the jailer who lost his temper . . .

"At the time of both inspections, the jail was filled with prisoners accused of serious crimes and only a spark is needed to set the explosion off.

"The entire matter was discussed with the sheriff, who fully realizes a serious situation has arisen."

The report also said the mattresses at the jail "were in a very dirty condition and a great many of them were unfit for use."

Of the "very dirty condition" in the Frederick County Jail, the report said:

"The toilets and washbowls were filthy and the entire jail showed lack of a definite program. Mattress covers were in use, but they were dirty.

"The women's sections were just as dirty as the male section. . . . There are no wash basins in the cells, and the plumbing is generally in a bad state of repair. The jail has deteriorated considerably in the past year."

Inspectors said in the Washington County Jail at Hagerstown, "the paint work was very dirty . . . and there were roaches and bugs in the cells. The washbowls were very dirty also and there was evidence of neglect throughout the building . . ."

"Weapons can be smuggled in as well as whisky," the report said, through "the many holes in the wire fence" around the Calvert County Jail at Prince Frederick.

Of the Allegany County Jail, the report said:

(1) It was in a "very clean" condition.

(2) Food was wholesome and prisoners did not complain about it.

(3) There was no employment for prisoners except jail maintenance work.

(4) Women prisoners have "comfortable quarters."

(5) "It is unfortunate that juveniles must be kept with other prisoners, even though while only waiting to take them to other institutions. Some better arrangements should be made."

(6) The five county lockups are in "good" to "excellent" condition.

almost completely free of snow and ice.

However, there were still patches of snow and ice on some streets and highways to bring motorists to grief. More than 30 accidents, none of them involving serious injury, were reported in the District yesterday.

Police said snowballs thrown by youngsters caused a three-vehicle crash on McMillan dr., near the reservoir, at 12:15 p. m.

The accident involved a coal pickup truck operated by Henry Burke, 39, of 411 B st. se., an automobile driven by Ernest J. Umberger, 38, of 207 Albany ave., Takoma Park, Md., and a pickup truck driven by William L. Woodruff, 38, of 442 Kenyon st. nw.

Police said the children struck Woodruff in the head with a snowball, that when Woodruff stopped his truck Umberger swerved around him to the left and was hit in the rear by Burke's truck. Then, police added, Umberger's car was thrown into the rear of Woodruff's truck.

Umberger's daughter, Judy, 2, received first aid for a small cut on her right hand.

Two alleged holiday celebrants drove their way into the Second Precinct Police lockup. They were William T. Burroughs, whose age and address were not listed, and Hobert Rutherford Jackson, jr., 27, of 2116 Kalorama rd. nw.

Police said Burroughs was at the wheel of a car which knocked down a tree on I st., between 8th and 9th sts. at about 1:20 p. m., then went an unsteady course to 6th and M sts., where it struck a parked car.

Burroughs was charged with drunken driving, operating with bad brakes and passing a red light. Police said Jackson, owner of the car, was charged with being drunk and permitting his car to be operated with faulty brakes.

The end of the three-day holiday weekend witnessed heavy travel on the public carriers. Air lines reported they were carrying their biggest loads since Christmas. Fully loaded trains in two and three sections were arriving and departing at Union Station. Bus lines reported travel heavier, too.

hopes it will be balanced some time in the future."

Smith pointed out that he also is a member of the committee of admissions for the District Court. He said that Tamm had applied for admission to the District Bar last year as a member of the Minnesota State Bar.

Peyton Ford, Assistant Attorney General, seated beside Tamm, asked Smith whether Tamm had not been advised that he would be eligible for admission next July. Smith replied, "I think Tamm was told he could qualify next July if he applied again."

Smith added, however, that since Tamm's nomination the committee on admissions has met again and that he and one other member "have changed our opinion as to his qualifications."

Smith said this change of opinion was based on Tamm's statement to the Supreme Court that he had not engaged in "the actual practice of law."

Tamm made the statement when he applied for admission to the Supreme Court. He was admitted to the Supreme Court and he testified during the current hearings that he had understood the questionnaire to ask whether he had engaged in the private practice of law. With that meaning in mind, he testified, he told he had told the Supreme Court he had not engaged in the practice of law.

Then in applying in admission to the District Bar he cited his FBI work as being primarily of a legal nature.

King said the FBI never passes on legal questions, but instead relies on the legal guidance of the Justice Department. "When Mr. Tamm gets on the bench, he can't ask anyone else to make his opinions for him—he's got to make them himself," King said.

Senate Gets Bill For Bay Crossing

Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) and Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) yesterday introduced a bill to authorize a Chesapeake Bay bridge or tunnel near Sandy Point, Md.

The bill also will authorize a Baltimore bridge or tunnel at the Patapsco River.

Location of the Chesapeake Bay project would be from Sandy Point to Kent Island, route of a ferry which links the Washington area with the Eastern Shore.

The bill was sent to the Senate Public Works Committee.

tered the building on the shoulders of enthusiastic supporters. They moved past heavily armed guards, the Associated Press said.

[About 200 persons outside cheered him and shouted: "Long live Benes! Long live democracy without machineguns!"]

Normal activity in Prague was almost paralyzed as the result of the crisis. A session of the constituent assembly set for tomorrow was postponed. Only one newspaper—the Communist organ Rude Pravo—appeared in the streets. The city has 10 dailies.

Confusion and alarm were intensified when electric power was suspended for one hour during the afternoon, apparently due to power house failure.

[Meanwhile, the country was awaiting a one-hour strike Tuesday, ordered at a Communist solidarity rally on Sunday, the Associated Press said.]

Communist Interior Minister Vaclav Nosek announced the discovery of "proof" that the National Socialist Party was plotting an armed uprising and military seizure of public buildings.

Nosek said that the Communist-controlled Prague police had arrested two army officers and "a number of civilians" in connection with the alleged plot.

The Interior Ministry published a document which it said was found "in the possession of one of the arrested persons," giving detailed instructions for the capture of Prague and its main public offices.

The document was allegedly issued by the main secretariat of the National Socialists, which was occupied for six hours today by heavily armed police who ransacked the party files.

The National Socialist Party headquarters flatly denied the ministry's charges.

The spokesman implied that the document had been planted in party files during police occupation of the secretariat building.

The Interior Ministry communique identified the two arrested officers as V. Tajchman and Jaroslav Nemeck, and said they had been arrested in the Vinohrady district of Prague. Their ranks were not given.

The names of the arrested civilians were not published. However, it had been reported earlier that six National Socialist leaders and one other minor party official had been arrested.

• A warrant was issued for the arrest of Jan Ursiny, Slovak democrat vice premier, on charges of treason. Ursiny is one of the 12 ministers whose resignations precipitated the crisis.

The governing body of the Czechoslovak Parliament announced without explanation that the scheduled meeting tomorrow of the National Assembly would not be held.

Gustav Husak, Communist chairman of the board of delegates—"cabinet"—of semiautonomous Slovakia, announced that representatives of the majority Slovak Democratic Party would be dismissed because members of their party had resigned from the national government.

Husak also announced, without giving details, that he had ordered widespread security measures to meet the "disturbed situation."

The "discovery" of the plot climaxed a day-long series of raids and decrees apparently aimed at frightening Benes and minor party leaders into agreement with the Communist demand for full power in the government.

Armed police stood guard at public buildings and downtown street corners throughout the day. Interior Ministry trucks loaded with uniformed constables prowled the streets. Three-man Army patrols wearing red armbands reinforced the police detachments.

The Reds tightened controls on Radio Prague, and reportedly took over radio stations and news agencies in Slovakia. Communist-led printers refused to set type for at least one non-Marxist newspaper.

Czech citizens were forbidden to travel abroad without permission of the Communist Interior Ministry.

Political observers believed that the lightning Communist campaign was intended to increase pressure on President Benes for a Communist-dominated government to replace the cabinet broken up last Friday by the resignation of 12 non-Communist Ministers.

The Social Democratic Party, which holds the balance of power in the cabinet crisis, agreed today to discuss a Communist proposal for an all-Marxist cabinet, but warned that any program must respect "the principles of parliamentary democracy."

Social Democrat acceptance of the Communist bid came as a surprise. Earlier in the day, the party had ousted two pro-Communist members and denounced Communists for "compromising the Socialist ideal."

Twenty heavily armed police seized the "republic square" office of the leading opposition National Socialist Party and held it for six hours while other agents searched the files.

The National Socialists announced later that six of their leaders had been arrested, including the Ministry of Justice official in charge of the investigation of last September's Communist bomb plot against three cabinet Ministers.

The Czech (Catholic) People's Party announced that several of their district offices in provincial cities had been searched during the day, and that Felix Uhl, party youth leader, had been arrested.

A warrant issued for Jan Ursiny, Slovak democratic leader and former Vice Premier who was forced to resign several months ago in a Communist-engineered political scandal.

Social Democratic leaders reported that Food Minister Vaciav Majer had been refused permission to speak Saturday over the Communist-controlled Prague Radio, and added that the station had fired all non-Communist announcers.

Unofficial reports from Bratislava, capital of Slovakia, said Communist directors were installed Saturday at Radio Bratislava and the Slovak news agency Zas.

Leaders of non-Communist parties charged their members had been instructed not to report for work at either of the big radio stations or at the Zas offices.

Vlasta Kousova-Petrankova, Social Democrat vice chairman for the Prague district, and Dr. J. Nemec, a Social Democratic official from Hradec Kralove, were dismissed from the party for "serious offenses against party discipline."

Both spoke Saturday at a Communist mass meeting here, called to demand that Benes open the way for a Communist-dominated government by accepting the resignations of the 12 cabinet ministers.

U. N. Gets Grim Trieste Report

Lake Success, Feb. 23 (AP).—The United Nations received a grim report today on mounting economic, financial and political problems in Trieste.

It was prepared by British Maj. Gen. T. S. Airey, commander of the British-United States zone of the free territory, and submitted by the United States and Britain for information of the Security Council.

The gist of the report was that the U. N. would be faced with a gigantic task when it takes over the administration of Trieste, and that the more it delays the more serious the problems become.

At the same time, it warned against a "hasty compromise" which would not "be in the interest of world peace." This apparently was a reference to the Security Council's efforts to find a solution to the long deadlock over a governor.

General Airey said the U. N. must be prepared to deal with the clashing national and racial ideologies of Italians and Yugoslavs.

The Communists are a serious problem, he reported. He cited strikes, demonstrations, noncooperation in local government and attempts to inject the Communist doctrine into public schools.

These problems are accompanied by equally serious economic and financial difficulties, the report indicated. Among these were listed unemployment, food shortages, industrial and commercial stagnation and huge budgetary deficits.

Foraging by Reds Reported by Clay

Russian Soldiers Entering U. S. Zone Illegally, General Tells Washington

Berlin, Feb. 23 (U.P.) — Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor in Germany, charged today that Russian soldiers have been entering the American zone illegally to demand foor from German farmers or hunt wild game.

He also charged that German border police from the Soviet zone of Germany have been penetrating the state of Hesse, in the American zone, and arresting persons there on instructions from Weimar, the capital of Thuringia, which is governed by the Russians.

The allegations were made in Clay's semimonthly report to Washington on conditions in the American zone in Germany.

"In Bavaria there was a sharp increase in the number of border violations in the area adjacent to the Soviet zone of Austria, consisting mainly of illegal entry by Soviet soldiers into Bavaria to secure food through arbitrary demands on German farmers or through the hunting of wild game," Clay said.

Hoover Sees U. S. Without Allies If War Should Develop

New York, Feb. 23 (U.P.)—Former President Herbert Hoover said today that, if war should come, this country could not count on one military ally the world over.

Hoover spoke at a Washington's Birthday banquet held by the Sons of the American Revolution in the Waldorf-Astoria.

"Today we are not only compelled to remain armed on what amounts to a gigantic war footing," he said, "but we must realize that in case some one would make war upon us we have no certainty of military allies in the world."

Hoover said that "at the moment' B'ritain and western Europe might remain neutral in any war. He said he was not questioning these nations' good faith or their gratitude for United States aid.

"It is the bare fact of divided and weakened European nations in the face of Red armies of 2,500,000 men along the iron curtain," he explained.

Hoover said that a federation of western Europe would strengthen the forces of peace and defense and that unless western Europe adopted some form of economic and political unity the Marshall Plan would fall far short of its goal.

But the former President urged that any defense union of western Europe be carried out through the United Nations, which he described as "the hope of mankind."

"Such an action would bring more vitality and strength into the United Nations," he said. "It would avoid the United States being involved in military alliances.

Hoover suggested specifically that any defense union among western European countries be set under Chapter VII of the U. N. Charter which authorizes and encourages regional groupings of nations for defense and consultation and action in maintaining peace. Such an organization was set up for the defense of the Western Hemisphere by the Inter-American treaty.

U. S. Military Aid to China Urged by Taft

Detroit, Feb. 23 (AP).—Senator Taft (R., Ohio) today called for American military help for China.

He termed President Truman's 570-million-dollar assistance plan a "relief program" which "will completely fail to solve the problem" of Communist pressure.

Taft said Secretary of State Marshall had been "unwillingly forced" into drafting the aid program sent to Congress last week.

"The truth is," Taft said in an address prepared for an Economic Club luncheon, "that Secretary Marshall does not like the Chinese and has no interest in their problems."

The Ohio Senator, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said he considers the Far East as ultimately more important to peace than Europe.

Yet today in China, he continued, "we continue a policy which threatens to undo in the Far East everything the Marshall Plan (for European recovery) is trying to do in western Europe."

Taft said the matter of relief and rehabilitation for China is open to question. But, he added:

"Certainly we can provide the Chinese government with the arms and ammunition necessary to resist Communist force in Manchura as we have undertaken to resist them in Greece."

Taft said that during the early war years Americans were taught to regard Chiang Kai-shek as this country's greatest friend.

How, he continued, "every Commie sympathizer in the United States is damning Chiang Kai-shek. . . . He was the same man then with the same faults that he has now, but forces in the State Department have encouraged the propaganda against him."

Fred A. Bryan Cleared of Manslaughter

Fred A. Bryan, former Fairfax County Republican chairman, yesterday was found innocent of manslaughter charges placed against him following the traffic death last October 27 of Lemuel B. Morris.

Fred A. Bryan

A 12-man jury deliberated only 15 minutes before returning the verdict which cleared Bryan of the charge.

During the day-long trial in Fairfax Circuit Court, Commonwealth Attorney Hugh B. Marsh contended that Bryan had been intoxicated at the time of the accident.

Bryan, through his attorney, Brooke Howard, of Alexandria, denied the charge. Earlier, Bryan had been fined $100 and sentenced to 60 days in jail on a drunk driving charge by Judge Harry Carrico, in Fairfax Trial Justice Court, but an appeal is pending.

Morris, a close friend of Bryan's, died two days after a car operated by Bryan in which Morris was a passenger, collided with another car on Route 123 near Vienna, Va.

Morris, at the time was a candidate for the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors.

Diverted Materials

One of the features that seems to have escaped notice in the Cain bill to extend—and weaken—rent control is the repeal of the provision requiring permits for diversion of scarce building materials to nonessential construction. Under the expiring law, persons seeking to build amusement and recreation facilities must first obtain sanction from the Office of the Housing Expediter, which has authority to decide whether scarce materials can be spared for such purposes. The justification given by Senator Cain for abolishing this restriction is that amusement and recreation construction amounts to only 6 per cent of the whole and that the Housing Expediter would need a larger force in order to enforce the present law properly.

These seem to us flimsy reasons for discarding the rule when the housing shortage is yet unrelieved. In the first place, there is no telling how much housing efforts would be impaired if recreation and amusement operators were free to divert all the building materials they wanted. Secondly, if the present regulation has not been 100 per cent effective, then the answer, it seems to us, is to give the Housing Expediter the personnel he needs to enforce it. To be sure, this flaw in the Cain bill serves again to emphasize the necessity for a broad governmental housing assistance program—which we think is now the only way to obtain the rental housing that Senator Cain euphemistically says is the only shortage. Unless Congress is ready to abandon any governmental effort to meet the housing problem and admit abject failure, then certainly regulations governing use of scarce materials ought to be retained in the new rent control law.

Turning On The Light

No. IX.

Congressional inquiries should be dedicated to enlightenment and not to persecution.

What rights should be guaranteed to witnesses appearing before congressional investigators? The need for some additional safeguards is now widely recognized. A memorandum recently put out by the Senate Judiciary Committee, at the instigation of its chairman, Senator Wiley, concludes: "Much confusion and ill feeling might be avoided by the adoption in each house of the Congress of standard rules and procedures for the guidance of committees conducting investigations. As a minimum, the right of cross-examination should be considered."

Several experts with whom we have discussed this proposal agree that a person whose reputation is assailed before a congressional committee should have an opportunity to question the accuser. One acceptable practice is the submission of such questions to the committee's counsel. However it is done, limits on the privilege are everywhere recognized as essential to avoid disruption of inquiries or their diversion to irrelevant issues.

Extensive cross-examination can readily be avoided by not taking loose hearsay evidence from one person against another. When the conduct of an individual is under inquiry, the best witness is the individual himself. If the committee staff is doing its work properly, it will have ample evidence at hand to guide the questioning of the official or individual whose acts are under scrutiny. Expert staff work can reduce to a minimum the sort of reckless mud-throwing and replies in kind that characterize the inquiries of poorly managed committees. When derogatory evidence is introduced by third parties, however, fairness demands that the defamed person be given a chance to reply, in person or in writing, within reasonable limits of time and space.

There is widespread agreement that a person summoned before a committee should have the right to make a statement of his views relevant to the subject of the inquiry. When this right is denied, the enraged witness usually gives his statement to the press and gets more publicity than he would be likely to get if it went quietly into the committee record. Any attempt at muzzling a witness thus defeats its own purpose and puts the inquiring committee instead of the witness on the defensive before the public. Aside from this practical consideration, the first principle of fair play requires that a person summoned to inform Congress on any subject be allowed to have his say, again within reasonable limits as to time and space.

Another rule ought to permit every witness to have his attorney present, if he cares to do so. Of course, the attorney could not reasonably be permitted to testify for the witness, but there seems to be no sound reason for excluding him.

The rules here suggested would not hamstring any congressional committee. They are not comparable to court procedure, which must naturally be more carefully guarded than congressional quests for information. We are convinced, however, that these rules would eliminate many current abuses and notably improve the relations between Congress and the people.

Palestinian Nettle

The grapple with the problem of Palestine is about to begin in the Security Council. There is a body of opinion in this country which would accept the present impossibility of bringing the Jews and the Arabs together over partition with economic union and let them fight it out. In other words, the advice is to forget about the U. N. recommendation and stay "neutral." But how is neutrality to be expressed? Is it to be the neutrality of prewar days when our hands-off policy hampered the victims of aggression? This is the question that Senator Elbert Thomas raises. When the Ethiopia dispute started, he introduced an amendment to remove the arms embargo when the embargo acted to the disadvantage of a victim of aggression. But Congress took no action. The result was, to our subsequent mortification, that "Mussolini was not stopped because he could get what arms he wished from the rest of the world but his victim could get none from us."

Precisely the same situation is present in Palestine. The Arabs are getting the arms they need from Britain and elsewhere to set aside the decision of the General Assembly. "Powerful Arab interests, both inside and outside Palestine," reported the U. N. Palestine Commission, "are defying the resolution of the General Assembly and are engaged in a deliberate effort to alter by force the settlement envisaged therein." But the Jews are the victims of an arms embargo, even though they are defending a decision—and a compromise decision—which was handed down by the United Nations. If this is neutrality, then the word has no meaning.

The fact is, of course, that the United Nations is a party in interest in the dispute over Palestine. Its involvement is twofold. Any threat to the world's peace coming from overt or covert aggression is its concern. There is no need to go elsewhere than to the report of the U. N.'s own commission to appreciate that Arab aggression represents a clear and present danger to the world's peace. The second reason for the involvement of the United Nations is that a recommendation of the General Assembly is being flouted. To be sure, the recommendation is not binding. But it has the prestige of the United Nations behind it, and if the members stand idly by and let the United Nations be dragged in the dust, then the world body's standing will be gravely impaired. This is the mildest view of the consequences that would follow nonenforcement. Senator Taft says that absence of backing of the great powers would mean that the United Nations would "sink into insignificance."

There is no alternative before the Security Council but to grasp the nettle in Palestine. The highest stake that the nations have in the matter is the prestige of the United Nations. Recourse to expediency would act like a boomerang on any nation that succumbs to it. Particularly is this country primarily concerned with the United Nations. The President in his latest report on the United Nations calls the world body "the cornerstone of our foreign policy." It stands to reason that the reassertion of the authority of the United Nations must be the first consideration of the United States as well as of the Security Council. And this has never been imperiled as it has today in Palestine. Not only has violence been mounting in member nations adjacent to Palestine; deadlines in the Assembly's recommendation have been ignored by the mandatory power, viz., Britain. The Arab and Jewish militias were to be armed; only the Arab militia is getting arms. By February 1 a port was to be set aside so that the Jews could import materials; the facilities have been denied. The provisional governments were to be set up by April 1, but the U. N. Palestine Commission to supervise this task will not be allowed entry till May 1.

If the prestige of the United Nations is asserted promptly, then it may be possible to get the Jews and Arabs to sit down together and work out a permanent solution. Nobody will profit by the vacuum that nonaction or pusillanimity will produce in Palestine. To let the Arabs and Jews fight it out would be to risk unilateral intervention by an outsider which that outsider could construe as aimed at the defense of the United Nations.

War Crime Trials

It is a most remarkable condemnation of American judicial processes which Judge Charles F. Wennerstrum delivered at the conclusion of a recent trial of eight German generals at Nuernberg—the more remarkable since Judge Wennerstrum himself presided at the trial. He has come to the conclusion that victors are not qualified to judge the vanquished. By whom else, after a great world war, is justice to be effected and international law to be established? He accused the prosecution of bias, vindictiveness and ambition for convictions. In all criminal proceedings, we suppose, the prosecution, representing as it does the forces of law and order, may be said to have a bias in their behalf and an eagerness to convict those it considers criminal. It is the business of the court to see to it that the rights of the accused are respected. If the German generals appearing before Judge Wennerstrum's tribunal failed in any way to get a fair trial, it is on his own shoulders that the prime responsibility must rest.

"If I had known seven months ago what I know today," Judge Wennerstrum is quoted as having declared, "I would never have come here." What a pity he was incapable of a little foresight! Everything he says he learned at Nuernberg should have been plain to him before he left Iowa. He knew he was to preside over an American court established in conformity with the London agreement as a subsidiary of the international tribunal; that this court was to try conquered Germans for war crimes as defined in the Nuernberg precedents. If, as now appears to be the case, he thought this an improper procedure, he would have done a great deal better to stay at home. His intemperate blast did grave injury to Gen. Telford Taylor, who has conducted the prosecution with dignity, honor and intelligence, and to the whole developing pattern of international justice. As General Taylor observed, it was "subversive of the interests and policies of the United States and will be used by all the worst elements in Germany against the best."

Resisting Pressure

Possibly it is inevitable that any body constituted like the Civil Aeronautics Board should be subjected to varying degrees of outside pressure in efforts to influence its decisions. Interested parties naturally employ every means at their command to justify their cases and make their wishes known. However, the length to which such efforts went in the Middle Atlantic case just decided by the CAB raises a serious question of propriety. Board members and staff were inundated by letters and visits from Senators and Congressmen as well as large industrialists and civic groups. Patently the effect of this kind of high pressure on a quasi-judicial agency is to obstruct rather than facilitate an objective consideration of the issues.

That the CAB did not give way to the lobbying in the Middle Atlantic case is distinctly to its credit, the more so since the board is now crippled by vacancies. The decision itself is a highly complex affair involving no fewer than 26 applications for new or changed routes in the Middle Atlantic States. The primary effect of the board's action is to award new certificates to three feeder lines and to extend the operations of six scheduled air lines. Several of these changes, incidentally, are calculated to give better local service between Washington and areas east and south. All in all, the new awards seem to us to be based on service to the public.

It may be said, to be sure, that the delay involved in the Middle Atlantic decision—the case dragged on for two full years—invited the sort of political pressure that some of the applicants employed. This reflects a mechanical failure within the board itself that demands correction. Certainly the board ought to be equipped to render opinions promptly; the present backlog merely emphasizes the necessity for overhauling of case procedure. Nevertheless, the board's obvious deficiencies in this regard by no means excuse the attempts to sway it after arguments have been heard. We think there ought to be a general rule, perhaps buttressed by some words from the CAB, to the effect that such tactics are not to be used while cases are sub judice—a rule similar to the one observed with respect to the courts. Beyond this point, the pressure in this instance demonstrates clearly the necessity for selecting men for the CAB vacancies who will be able to withstand narrow attempts at influence in the broader consideration of the public interests.

Fill The Fleet

It hardly needs emphasis that if our armed forces are to do the jobs assigned to them, then they must maintain the full strength prescribed by law. Whether or not universal military training is enacted has relatively little bearing on this matter, since the only direct benefit to the regular services would be from those trainees who elected to enter the Army, Navy or Air Force in lieu of continuing their training with the reserves or National Guard. Although its complement is smaller than that of the Army, the Navy too has a recruiting problem. Its present authorized strength is 395,000. The enlistments of some 232,000 of the 434,000 men who were in the Navy as of last July 1 will expire by June 30, many of them by virtue of the fact that the men concerned enlisted for short periods during the initial postwar reconversion to become eligible for the GI Bill of Rights. Thus the Navy must obtain a considerable number of reenlistments or new recruits during the balance of this fiscal year. The current week, February 22-29, has been designated by the Navy as "Fill the Fleet" Week, and emphasis will be placed on the emoluments the Navy has to offer both temporary and career enlistees in its program built around airplane carriers, foreign and shore base duties and broad research activities. The campaign deserves the support of everyone who appreciates the continued importance of an adequate Navy in our defense establishment.

TO ONE AWAY

Death's kingdom must indeed be strongly fair
That it could tempt you from this hearth, this fire:
His citadels must arrogantly wear
Perfection at the tip of every spire.
What ruse has so betrayed you and your own
That you could turn without a backward look,
Leaving your cloak thrown down upon the stone,
Your mark still folded in your half-read book?

And I, who live upon a fare so lean
I daily starve upon such scanty crust,
Strive to attain that country yet unseen
Whose boundaries, they claim, are quiet dust,
Yet whose high narrow walls, beloved ghost,
Are heaven to the one who loved you most.

Change For Britain

I have read with interest J. A. Livingston's column of February 19 regarding Great Britain's economic situation. What Livingston says of the bankruptcy of Britain is true, but it is not the whole truth. Britain cannot expand her exports to meet her needs for imports. Insofar as this goal is set by those who would help Britain the effort will fail. Britain's position is worse because of the two wars, but the wars only hastened a trend which was inevitable.

The situation is this: In the long period of colonial development in the Americas and in Africa, and during the imperial regime in India, the British rendered a great service by serving as the financier, the manufacturer and the commercial carrier for the colonial world. Gradually the colonial countries, one after the other, arrived at the stage of development and population growth where it became profitable to add to the exploitation of natural resources, the processing of raw materials for home consumption and for export.

This growth of manufactures in the one-time colonial countries was encroaching upon the trade of Britain before World War I. There has never before been so intense and widespread feeling among the agricultural nations as at present that they must expand their manufactures and reduce their exports of raw materials and their imports of manufactured goods.

This trend would make necessary a change in British economic policy even if the foreign investments had not been sacrificed, but now the problem of adjustment to the world situation is imperative. Britain cannot build an industry and foreign trade which will support the present population at the accustomed standard of living. Every dollar furnished Britain with that end in view is worse than wasted.

Let Britain adopt a policy of readjustment, which means the planting of at least 40 per cent of the present population in other parts of the British Commonwealth or in other countries where skilled industrial workers are desired. This of course will take time, but once the new policy is adopted we can help (if help is desired) in making the new policy effective.

Italian Bonds

When the Anti-Fascist Concentration was operating in Paris two decades ago, former Premier Francesco Nitti wrote me that when it deposed the Italian Fascist government it would repudiate all of the bonds sold by that government in the United States, and he urged me to make that fact known here. I told him that if any new Italian government did that, it would destroy the credit of its country here and would hamper Italy's future development.

Evidently, in spite of the fact that the United States has either given or advanced over a billion dollars to the present government in Italy, the anti-Fascists have kept their word and they have, at least in part, repudiated the obligations referred to above. Some months ago, a Socialist leader, Ivan Matteo Lombardo, came to the United States on an official mission and he and his aides negotiated a refunding of about 132 million dollars, bonds in question, including those of the Kingdom of Italy and those of Italian public utility and industrial concerns.

While the principal amount of the bonds was not reduced, but was increased by the addition of accrued interest, the interest payments in the future were scaled down from a respective 6 to 7 per cent rate to as follows: 1 per cent per annum from January 1, 1947, to January 1, 1950; 2 per cent from 1950 to 1952; 3 per cent thereafter. The actual loss in interest to American investors by this clever arrangement perpetrated by the Italian plenipotentiaries amounts to more than the principal amount of the bonds!

I believe this calls for concerted action on the part of investors, not only in their interest, but also in the interest of the future credit of the Italian Republic. While it is obvious that the present government in Italy has absorbed some of the poison exuded by the Leftist and communistic groups that now virtually control northern Italy in conjunction with Soviet Russia, one would think that Premier De Gasperi and his close aids would be as meticulous about honoring the obligations of past governments as was the Fascist government which passed out during the war.

Correction

A typographical error in "Reader's" letter of February 23 on "Rents And Prices" distorted the sense of the letter. In pleading for a 50 per cent increase in rents, "Reader" referred to the '100 per cent increase already received by union labor." This figure was unintentionally altered to read "10 per cent." The Washington Post regrets the error.

Congressional Politicians

Recently a member of Congress complained that the American people are losing confidence in Congressmen and are too ready to criticize and find fault.

But the gentleman is wrong in his belief that the American people are disgusted with all the members of Congress. The average thinking citizen is proud of many of the men who make up our national legislative body and is also pleased that the intelligent members of Congress are serving the people as statesmen rather than politicians.

Such leaders as Secretary Marshall and Secretary Anderson and others offer plans and proposals to strengthen the American economy and to build up a bulwark against the Russian efforts to seize western Europe. What does the small coterie of professional politicians do? They attempt literally to emasculate the plans so that the politicians may get their names in the press and so possibiy pick up a few votes at the next election.

Shortly before Pearl Harbor, members of both Houses of Congress hampered and battled every effort of President Roosevelt and the Administration to prepare for what any thinking man or woman knew was coming.

What terrific blow will be necessary to bring the politicians in Congress to their senses?

Will the blow be the overthrow of France and Italy by the Communists? An uprising in Latin America? The conquest of Manchuria and the fall of vast China under the heel of Russia? Or possibly a blow at the vitals of America by some foreign foe?

Is it not time to stop being politicians and instead act like Americans? DUDLEY H. TAYLOR.

U. N. Police Force

As one veteran of the still simmering war, I, like many others who put in from three to six years of our life span to achieve a lasting peace, now feel an increasing sense of bitterness and frustration over the present state of world affairs.

Why has this situation come about? We were reconciled to postwar maladjustments, but we expected them to be settled by conferences and treaty agreements so that by two years after the formal hostilities were terminated the structure for lasting peace would have been begun building on solid framework. We expected the United Nations, so auspiciously started at San Francisco, to play an increasingly important part in the settling of these problems. Instead, the opposite has occurred.

At this point I shall pause while everyone points out that Russia has not played fair, has fouled and bitten and scratched, and clinched for round after round until the fight for peace has come to dead stop. I concede the charges. But the guilt must also be shared by the referee, (the United Nations), and every policy forming personage of every member country that took part in forming this organization. In a slightly lesser degree the guilt must be borne by each citizen of every member nation. We just didn't give our organization enough power to have it cope with the problems thrust upon it.

The situation is analagous to the period in our own national history immediately following the Revolution when the Continental Congress was attempting to bring order to a weakened Nation through the inadequate powers given it under the Articles of Confederation. For a decade chaos resulted and increased because the pride of the individual States would not allow them to surrender any powers. Luckily, through many compromises and humblings of pride, the Constitution was finally ratified as the supreme law of the land, and the country prospered and gradually assumed stature.

The biggest mistake made during the past two years in setting up the U. N. is the failure to form the international police force to implement its decisions and act as a real force for maintenance of peace. All the money spent on information bulletins, instantaneous interpretation, air-conditioned conference rooms and so forth is just money wasted on an international debating team until the means are provided for backing up decisions.

Part of the failure in setting up this international police force goes to the plan under which it is supposed to be organized. The fault lies in making it up from units of the standing armies of the various nations which would be sent as units to trouble spots to deal with the situation and then return to their respective nations. This is the State militia system all over again with all its faults multiplied and tactical difficulties immeasurably increased.

The international constabulary must be set up on international basis. It members must be individual volunteers motivated by a strong desire to serve the cause of world peace. It should be a permanent organization with permanent bases located at strategic points throughout the globe.

A quota of 10,000 men to a country would result in a force of half a million men—a small force in comparison to the standing armies of today but large enough to be reckoned with. Support of the organizations should be based on the member nations' ability to pay.

A common language should be adopted upon its organization and a distinctive uniform incorporating United Nations, insigna, and different as possible from any particular national uniform now popular should be used. All officers should speak the official language. Units should be international in makeup from at least battalions. Weapons at the disposal of the constabulary should be the latest developed and it should be declared an international crime to develop weapons without informing the constabulary at the very beginning.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Wayward Wallace

THE APPEALS to Henry Wallace to come back to the Democratic fold are as futile as the mooing of a cow that has lost her calf. These appeals may, of course, be merely in the line of strategy to demonstrate that there is still a welcome for Wallace in the party he has deserted.

But if they are made with any hope that the wanderer will actually return, then they show a complete lack of understanding of the Wallace nature. First, last and always, Wallace is a visionary.

As a visionary he can promise the moon. He can promise a paradise on earth, as he does every time he speaks. And what is more, he can believe in his promises.

One often hears: "Is Wallace sincere?" The question is irrelevant. The visionary always believes his own visions. It is hard to imagine Wallace deliberately resorting to guile and deceit.

He has referred to his followers as a Gideon's army, and presumably he is the Gideon of this army. The Gideon of the Bible is visited by the angel of Yahweh as he is threshing corn in a wine press and is greeted as the future savior of Israel. No man who thinks in those terms is likely to turn back to the comfortable fold of party respectability.

Add to this the intensity of his feeling against President Truman. He would certainly be more than human if he could resist the temptation to try to defeat the man whom he regards as so wrong and unrighteous.

Should he harbor a desire to return to the party that gave him fame and high honor, the pressure of the zealots and the shrewd manipulators around him would be very great. A man of Wallace's temperament would find it difficult to go against that pressure.

AS A RESULT of several earlier columns on Wallace, a number of letter writers have accused me of saying that only Communists would support him. That is almost the exact opposite of what I said in January, when I expressed the opinion that Wallace had probably dealt the President's chance for reelection a mortal blow.

He will get the votes of those who want to express dissatisfaction and disillusion. They will have as many reasons as there are frictions and frustrations in this difficult period following on the most terrible war in history.

Thus, a small merchant writes that he cannot obtain certain nationally advertised merchandise in small quantities. His chain competitor down the street gets all that he needs to supply his trade. Wallace, says the writer, is for the small business man and against monopoly.

Of course, he is. He is also against sin and the common cold. He is for everything that is good and against everything that is bad. And because he will never be called to account for his promises, he can go right on offering the moon—your kind of moon, my kind of moon, the moon of the common man, every kind of pie in the sky.

BUT IT IS also true that the zealots and the manipulators around him are for the most part Communists or so completely under the Communist doctrine that they are cheating the party out of its dues. These manipulators know where they are going.

The real goal is 1952; 1948 is merely setting the stage for the larger struggle that they anticipate during the next four years. They see that struggle in the following terms.

The Wallace candidacy will promote such confidence among the professionals who run the Republican Party that in June they will nominate a pre-Hoover troglodyte of the type of Senator John Bricker or Speaker Joseph Martin. Because of the Wallace protest vote in key States, the troglodyte will win. His victory will be the signal for a further spurt in the inflationary boom, with the stock market spiraling along with all other markets.

Then will come the bust. The troglodyte in the White House will talk balanced budget while unemployment and social disorder mount. That will be the opportunity for the shrewd manipulators, either through the new third party or through capture of the Democratic Party, to come to power. If the crisis should deteriorate into violence and bloodshed, the manipulators are prepared to exploit that, too. That is the moment for world communism.

It is doubtful if Wallace, the visionary, thinks in such realistic terms. But the so-called realists around him furnish one of the forces propelling him onward. The Democrats may keep the light in the window burning, but in my opinion the odds are 100 to 1 that Henry will not come home.

"Rents And Prices"

The Washington League of Women Shoppers heartily commends your February 17 editorial on rent control and the housing shortage.

Both the Democratic and the Republican Parties in Congress seem quite agreed that some form of rent control should be continued for at least a year. The Washington League, however, is also concerned that effective and prompt legislation be enacted to insure not only true rent control but also large-scale housing construction; both are necessary in dealing adequately with the housing shortage. The need is for effective legislation, now.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Role Of The House

THE FACT that the Senate Committee has made a unanimous report on a bill for what is now to be known as the European Recovery Administration simplifies and clarifies the problem in the House. On all those features of the bill which have to do with foreign policy — with conditions, with ways of relating its purposes to the State Department and to foreign governments, the judgment of the Senate ought under our constitutional system be given special weight. The burden of proof would be on anyone in the House who wishes to change those terms of the Vandenberg bill. It would be for him to show not merely that he would prefer a different bill but that the Vandenberg bill is seriously defective.

Lippmann

For it may now be taken for granted that responsible leaders in the House have been consulted, all the serious objections have been considered, that all the alternatives have been weighed, and that the unanimous opinion of the Senate Committee is as good a collective judgment as can be had. For the whole undertaking is in the nature of an experiment, and no one can be perfectly sure that he is altogether right.

THE MAIN role of the House arises out of the fact that this is a money bill, and it must therefore pass primarily on whether the authorizations and appropriations are to be approved. This gives it, of course, an equal voice in the decision as to whether the bill as a measure of foreign policy is to be adopted. But it would be going beyond the spirit of the Constitution if it sought to originate, control, or direct foreign policy.

There would, therefore, be little point in reopening all the issues which the Senate committee resolved, no point at all in attempting to write a different bill. The responsible leaders of the House would only be confusing matters if they started all over again—ignoring the labors of the Senate and the unanimity of the committee. In the eyes of the country and of the world they would appear contentious and vain. They would contribute nothing to the public interest and they would impair their own prestige.

THIS GREAT measure is not only a contribution to recovery, reconstruction and peace. It is a demonstration—unique in history—of a free people's concern for the wellbeing of mankind. Nothing quite like it, and on such a scale, has ever before been conceived, and after long debate accepted and established. The fact that the American people will themselves benefit if recovery and peace are brought nearer does not make the thing less inspiring. For though it is no doubt a measure of enlightened self-interest, it is unusually enlightened. Where and when in the relation of states, not to speak of continents and hemispheres, has anything like it been undertaken?

There are some few who do not like it, others who do not understand it, and abroad there are many who simply cannot believe it. They cannot believe that a nation can make a substantial, material contribution to the general welfare, and not demand in return a substantial, material quid pro quo. They will have to learn to believe it, and in the meantime their skepticism about our purpose, their attribution to us of imperialistic and other sinister designs, is in a curious way flattering. For it expresses their recognition that the undertaking is in fact enormous, and their inability to believe that a great power could in such an enormous undertaking be animated by a concern for the common welfare.

YET THAT is the way it is. And because it is that way we should be very jealous of higgling and niggling in the debate which would bring this great measure down from the high plane on which it now rests.

At City of Peace

Bullet Trade Is Brisk on Way of Cross

Jerusalem (by mail), (AP).—Pistol holsters are sold these days on the "Way of the Cross." Grenades can be had on the Street of David.

Articles of war are exchanged openly in the city of peace, sacred to most of the world, as the Arabs prepare for showdown against partition.

Buyers examine grenades like American housewives ponder over tomatoes. Grenades sell for 60 cents, but the supply is limited. Bullets range up to 8 cents each and there are plenty.

Close by the Holy Sepulcher bearded leather workers sit before their shops making holsters and bandoliers. The bandolier will hold 50 rifle clips and fits around your waist and over your shoulders in a crossed manner like a Sam Browne belt. It costs $5.

Up and down the Via Dolorosa—"the way of the cross" over which Jesus carried his Cross to Calvary—a man without at least one revolver is rare. Rifles or tommy-guns are frequent. So are knives in belts.

U. N. to Debate Palestine

"non-Palestinian force" to enforce partition.

The problem is wrapped up in big power political and strategic interests and steeped in Middle Eastern oil.

A growing majority in U. N. apparently believe the Security Council has to choose between sending a U. N. army to the Holy Land in spite of the violent Arab explosion, it might bring or back down from the momentous General Assembly partition decision of last November.

Could Arm Big Militia

A middle group envisaged, however, the possibility of action short of sending armed force. It could include arming of a big Jewish militia in the hope it could handle the task without outside help, or action provided in the charter for diplomatic, commercial and other nonviolent sanctions against states guilty of charter violations.

The Arabs were ready for an all-out attack on legality of the partition decision.

Wallace, Others Demand U. S. Back Up Partition

Lake Success, Feb. 23 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace and four other leading Americans demanded today the United States act to make effective the partition of Palestine.

Wallace called upon the United States to support this international force; to take measures which would force Britain "to halt shipments of arms to the Arabs"; and to lift the embargo on arms to Palestine.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, president of the U. N. Commission on Human Rights and United States delegate to two U. N. Assemblies, called for prompt establishment of a U. N. force in Palestine.

She took this position with Herbert H. Lehman, former director-general of UNRRA and former Governor of New York, Senator Elbert Thomas (D., Utah), and Sumner Welles, former Undersecretary of State and now honorary president of the American Association for the United Nations.

Rep. Smith Says Troops In Palestine Mean War

Representative Smith (R., Wis.) said in the House yesterday that use of the military to force the partition of Palestine "means war." He is a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Mufti Ordered Street Blast, Arabs Assert

Beirut, Lebanon, Feb. 23 (U.P.).—Arab political sources said today that Haj Amin El Husseini, exiled Moslem Grand Mufti, had ordered the Ben Yehuda street bombing in Jerusalem to head off any attempt at a conpromise in the Palestine partition problem.

According to these informants Husseini ordered Abdul Khader Husseini, Arab commander for the Jerusalem district, to open a campaign of violence and thus head off reported British attempts to work out a last-hour solution which might be acceptable to most Arabs and Jews.

Arab informants suggested also that the Jerusalem explosion was intended as a protest against further Jewish immigration and a reprisal for Jewish attacks on Arabs during the last three months.

Four Arabs Killed In Convoy Attack

Jerusalem, Feb. 23 (AP).—Police said members of a Jewish motor convoy opened fire tonight on an Arab bus on a highway near Gaza, killing four Arabs and wounding nine others.

Two other Arabs were killed during the day in shooting incidents outside Jerusalem.

Sporadic firing broke out tonight in Jerusalem, where British, Jewish and Arab forces waited grimly behind barricaded zones for any large-scale attacks.

The Holy City was virtually paralyzed in the wake of the Sunday bombing of the Jewish business district which killed 52 persons.

The Arabs said Arab commandos in British uniforms set off the blast, but the feeling persisted among Jews that the British had something to do with it.

Arlington Police Bill Introduced

Richmond, Va., Feb. 23 (Spl.).—Arlington's county manager will have the right to appoint and discharge members of the county police department under a bill introduced in the Virginia Senate today.

The measure, introduced by Senator Charles R. Fenwick, would set up a three-man police board to hear appeals in suspension and discharge of policemen.

In yesterday's bill-jammed General Assembly session, which saw 97 measures introduced in the House and 40 in the Senate, Fenwick launched another bill paving the way for a war memorial stadium in Arlington.

Want Hatch Act Amended

In the House, a resolution was introduced under which Congress would be asked to amend the Hatch Act to permit Federal employes to run in local partisan elections. This was one answer to protests by some Arlington groups that 50 per cent of Arlington's population, as Federal employes, could not run in partisan local elections.

The House passed four bills by Senator Andrew W. Clarke of Alexandria strengthening the powers of Arlington County in the acquisition and operation of sewer systems.

Outstanding among the 137 bills introduced—possibly the largest number ever offered in one day—were these:

By Delegates Shirley T. Holland, Isle of Wight, and Robert Whitehead, Nelson: to eliminate the tax on money (20 cents per $100) for persons paying income taxes.

To Tax Physicians

By Delegate Whitehead: to levy a license tax on practicing physicians of from $15 to $25 a year.

By Senator Ted Dalton, Republican of Radford: to put a 25-cent-per-gallon tax on liquor to finance special medical and surgical care in State mental institutions.

By the Norfolk City delegation: to repeal the graduated State auto license tag tax and replace it with a $5 flat tax.

By Delegate C. C. Louderback, Page: a joint resolution to create a committee to study the Virginia retirement system.

By Senator Charles R. Fenwick, Arlington: to create a division of recreation within the State Planning Board, to offer consulting service to localities.

By Senator James E. Gardner, Richmond; to establish clinics for treatment of alcoholics at the Medical College of Virginia and the University Hospital in Charlottesville. The bill would provide the schools $150,000 each for the 1948-50 biennium out of ABC profits and would be a substitute for a previous measure on the same subject.

5 Governors Back States On Tidelands

By The Associated Press

Governors of California, Florida, Virginia, South Carolina and Kansas yesterday urged Congress to settle a dispute over ownership of the land under coastal waters.

They were among early witnesses as a Senate-House committee opened hearings at which spokesmen for at least 44 States lined up to support a bill to give the States clear title to such lands.

The last Congress passed a similar measure. It was vetoed by President Truman.

And last summer the Supreme Court ruled that the Federal Government has primary ownership in the land and oil resources under the waters off the coast of California.

Florida's Gov. Millard F. Caldwell told the committee the Supreme Court ruling is a step toward "the steady economic strangulation of the States."

The logical conclusion of the court's decision, Caldwell said, is "to assign all strategic materials, wherever situated," to the Federal Government.

Gov. William M. Tuck of Virginia said his State agrees that Congress should make it clear that the States own the land under their coastal waters.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina testified that unless Congress acts to "settle for all time" the question there will be endless litigation over ownership of the lands.

Gov. Earl Warren of California said his State would lose little revenue if the Federal Government had control over the oil deposits.

"Our great concern is not that we may lose some oil revenues, but that our dominion over our tidelands for every purpose be clouded," Warren said.

"Hundreds of millions of dollars have been expended on our harbors, our fisheries, our pleasure resorts.

"We are subordinated to the Federal Government in matters that we, and all other States, have for more than 100 years been told by the Supreme Court are a matter of State sovereignty."

Governor Frank Carlson of Kansas told the committee:

"If Congress does not strike down this new doctrine, it may prove to be the turning point in our national history marking the beginning of the end of our national bill of rights, which has made our Nation paramount among the world powers."

Montgomery School License Hearing Today

Private school officials in Montgomery County are expected to appear in large numbers at hearing in Rockville today to protest a proposed ordinance which would regulate such schools.

The hearing, set for 11 a. m. in the Rockville Courthouse, will be on an ordinance which would for the first time impose strict li-

Principal protest is expected to be regarding clause which would require a $25 license fee, plus one dollar for each paying pupil.

One school official, Dean Floyd O. Rittenhouse, of the Washington Missionary College, stated recently the fee would cost three Seventh Day Adventist schools in Takoma Park more than $1000 annually.

The Rev. William Francis Maloney, headmaster of Georgetown Prep, on Rockville pike, has declared he is "definitely opposed" to the provision. The school has 240 pupils.

County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr said yesterday the specification which would impose a tax of $1 per paying pupil was "merely put in for purposes of discussion." He added it was subject to upward or downward revision.

Primary purpose of the ordinance, county officials explained, is to provide for health and safety inspections of the schools and the license fee was included to pay the cost of such inspections.

2 Columbus, Ga., Papers Tied Up

Columbus, Ga., Feb. 23 (U.P.).—A strike by composing room workers today halted publication of this city's two newspapers, the Ledger and the Enquirer, and plans to put out a photo-engraved evening edition were upset when pressmen failed to arrive.

Both papers, serving a community of 53,000, are operated by the Ledger-Enquirer Co.

President Richard W. White of the local International Typographical Union, charged the company had posted notices constituting a "lockout," and announcing conditions "far beyond any requirements under any recently enacted State and Federal laws."

The company said it had listed changes in working conditions to comply with the Taft-Hartley law.

Farkas Kids Play Indians, Get Results

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

News Item—A fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Farkas, 9508 Saybrook ave., Silver Spring, Md., caused an unestimated amount of damage yesterday. The fire was confined to one room.

MIDMONDAY morning at the Andy (former Redskin) Farkas home was peaceful—and fairly quiet, too, considering the presence of three walkie-talkie youngsters, plus the baby.

Haight

Andy was away for the day and Mrs. Farkas, the former Ellen Marie Ryan, busied herself in the kitchen with half an eye on baby's crib and an ear tilted toward the children's upstairs room. Mothers will know what I mean.

Things appeared shipshape all around.

The kids were playing their favorite game (perhaps the Redskin influence) of "Indians." Heap Big Chief Mickey (going on 5) and his two squaws, Rosellen (going on 6) and Cecilia (going on 4) were building a village.

Now no Indian village is complete without a tepee and Chief Mickey was the man in motion when it came to gathering the necessary material, Government building restrictions to the contrary.

A large comforter served the purpose of a buffalo skin and a tall lamp, minus the shade, became the center pole.

SQUAW CECILIA pushed up some chairs and Chief Mickey and Squaw Rosellen anchored the corners of the comforter.

The tent was complete, a bit dark inside but this was overcome when some Indian pulled the cord lighting the bulb, giving a much too modern effect to the primitive setting but it must be remembered these were very young and inexperienced Indians.

What happened to the tribe during the interval that followed is not quite clear. Perhaps Big Chief Mickey put his squaws to work pounding imaginary corn while he, mythical bow and arrow in hand, strode off to stalk wild game.

Then came the transition so easily attained by healthy children. Mothers "Come to lunch" turned those Indians into hungry paleface kids before you could say "Captain John Smith."

While culinary arts were taking a beating downstairs, a strange situation existed in the Indian village. Smoke began to arise from the top of the tepee! Had the ghosts of some long-forgotten tribe taken over?

THE ANSWER is "No." The bulb had been left lighted and had set the comforter afire!

Mother Farkas smelled smoke! The cellar—no—upstairs—yes. It was seeping under the door of the children's room. She grabbed the baby, telling Rosellen to run over to the neighbor's.

The little girl started, lost a shoe in the snow and returned. Mother shouted her into action one shoe on and one shoe off. Neighbor Sam Darr arrived and suggested calling the fire department.

"Why didn't I think of that?" asked Mrs. F. as, baby under one arm, she began to dial.

McKinney Tries Ankle in Drill

Bones McKinney, 6-foot 6-inch forward of the Washington Caps, will work out with the local pros today when they step through a final drill in preparation for their Basketball Association of America game with the Chicago Stags at Uline Arena tomorrow night.

Horne Whips Hursey in Close Fight

Sonny Horne, Valley Stream, N. Y., won a 10-round decision over Smuggy Hursey, Washington middleweight, last night before 3278 fans at Uline Arena. The fight was fairly close.

In the semiwindup middleweight, Al Wright of Washington scored a fluke KO over Jackie Williams, Baltimore, in the fourth round of a scheduled eight.

Williams, a last-minute replacement for Jerry Hemminger, Toledo, went down without being hit. In the previous milling, however, Wright had sent Williams sprawling three times in the third round.

The show opened on a fast note when Welterweight Miles Jones of Washington stepped four fast rounds to win the decision from Chink Thomas, Baltimore.

The fast tempo continued in the next clash, a scheduled four, when Lightweight Tony Longo of Baltimore, scored a second round TKO over Lee Herald, Washington. Herald was floored in both rounds.

In a six rounder, Bobby Bell, Youngstown, decisioned Billy Unk, Washington lightweight.

Commissioners Busy

The District Boxing Commission worked in shifts in its effort to witness both the Uline and Turner Arena fights last night.

Chairman Heinie Miller and Inspector Clarence Talley watched the first half of the card at Turner's and then hotfooted it to Uline's. The third member of the group, Thomas Morgan, watched the preliminaries at Uline's and then relieved Miller and Talley at Turner's.

Terps Down Clemson, 63-61

Clemson, Feb. 23.—A field goal by Maryland's speedy Eddie Crescenze of Massilon, Ohio, in the last 30 seconds of play gave the Terrapins a 63-61 Southern Conference basketball victory over Clemson College here tonight before a crowd of 3000.

The Tigers took an early lead on a long spectacular shot by All-State Leonard Riddle of Greenville, and Clemson proceeded to rack up nine points during the first five minutes of play before the visitors could sink agoal. Another three minutes elapsed before they scored again, and by that time, the Tigers had 17 points.

Maryland then livened the somewhat dull game and came within five points of Clemson at the half, the score reading Clemson 28, Maryland 23.

The invaders then caught Coach Banks McFadden's quintet after two minutes of the second half elapsed. The lead alternated for the remainder of the game, neither surpassing the other by more than six points.

Hershey Meets Lions Tonight

Center Kenny Schultz and Defenseman Pat Wilson return to the Washington Lions lineup tonight when they entertain the third-place Hershey Bears in an American Hockey League match at Uline Arena at 8:30. Wilson has been sidelined with a strained leg tendon, and Schultz with a shoulder separation for the past month.

The last-place Lions turned in one of their best performances of the season in their last outing against the Bears. They fired six goals in the last eight minutes to win, 8-7.

Mills, VMI Tackle, Signs With Dons

Los Angeles, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Los Angeles Dons of the All-America Professional Football Conference announced the signing today of two rookie tackles.

They are 206-pound Malachi Mills of Virginia Military Institute, All-Southern Conference choice in 1945 and 1947, and Bill Lilienthal, 220 pounds, of Villanova, an All-Eastern tackle last year.

Cooper Stops Lima in 3d Before 1568

Jimmy Cooper, the 19-year-old pride of U st., last night scored a spectacular three-round knockout over Billy Lima, Miami, Fla., before a record turnout for the season at Turner's Arena.

Randy Brown, 164, of New York, scored an 8-round decision over Artie Bethea, 158½, of Washington. It was close battle all the way, as Bethea made a belated, but futile, rally in the final round.

Stonewall Jackson, 142, Washington lightweight, scored his twenty-fifth victory in 27 starts by defeating Leslie Harris, a Baltimore substitute, in another 8-rounder. Stonewall floored Harris in the first heat.

Eddie Johnson knocked out Tee Edwards in 1:40 of the fourth of the opening bout.

Nats Sign Masterson

Pitcher Walter Masterson yesterday signed his 1948 Nat contract, leaving Outfielder Buddy Lewis the only unsigned player.

Pitcher Sid Hudson and Catcher Al Evans also joined Masterson in agreeing to terms.

Masterson, a 12-game winner last year—his best since joining the team—left for Orlando, Fla., and will work out on his own until the team assembles officially for drills March 1. At Orlando he joins First Baseman Mickey Vernon, Pitcher Early Wynn and Outfielder Sherry Robertson.

Vernon has been at Bartow, Fla., where he served as an instructor in George Stirnweiss' baseball school. Wynn and Robertson served in similar capacities for the school at Winter Garden, Fla.

No terms were announced for Masterson, but President Clark Griffith indicated the tall right-hander received a "substantial" raise over his 1947 pay.

Murdock in Hospital

Ralph Murdock, Chesapeake Bay authority on hunting and fishing, entered Providence Hospital yesterday for a check-up.

2000 Will Bowl Today In Police Boys Benefit

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Two thousand bowlers are expected to take part in the opening day's competition of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club benefit tournament, starting today at 29 alleys in the area.

From Arlington, Va., to College Park, Md., league bowlers will be shooting for the big first prize in both men's and women's divisions.

Sponsored by The Washington Post with the full support of the Metropolitan Duckpin Bowling Operators Association, the week-long tournament may bring the Police Boys Club as much as $5000.

Originated last year, the 1947 edition of the tourney saw 8700 bowlers take part. The Boys Club received almost $3000 and the bowlers split a prize fund of approximately $1200.

Entry fee for the tournament is the lowest of any major bowling contest in the area. For 50 cents a bowler is eligible for one of the many prizes.

First prize for men will be $100 and a $50 cash prize will go to the leading woman bowler. In addition, many other handicap prizes will be awarded, depending on the number of entries.

There will also be prizes for high scratch game and set for both men and women. Scorekeepers and chairmen of the prize committee are Julie Singer, manager of Greenway, and Hap Newman, Chevy Chase Ice Palace bowling manager.

Rules will follow Washington City and Washington Women's Duckpin Association standards. Full handicap will be observed, with scratch 128 for men and 118 for women. All bowlers must have rolled at least 15 games with their league to be eligible. A bowler can, however, enter from as many leagues as he or she belong to.

The tournament will run through Monday, March 1, so every league in the area will have a chance to enter.

Bowling Alleys Where Tourney Will Be Held

These are the bowling alleys where the Police Boys Club benefit tournament will be held:

Anacostia Spillway, Alexandria Recreation Center, Almas Temple, Arcadia Bowling, Arlington Bowling Center, Bethesda Bowling Alley, Bethesda Bowling Center, Brookland, Chevy Chase Ice Palace, Clarendon Bowling Center, College Park, Colonial Village, Columbia, Fort Davis, Greenway, Hi Skor, Hyattsville Recreation, King Pin, Lafayette, Lucky Strike, Kalorama Bowling, Mount Rainier, Penn, Petworth, Queen Pin, Rosslyn, Silver Spring, Takoma and Temple.

Wheelchair Basketball Here Friday

The Birmingham Hospital Charioteers, the wheel-chair basketball team representing the Birmingham Veterans' Hospital in Van Nuys, Calif., will play the Catholic University Jayvees at C. U. gymnasium Friday evening at 8:30.

Eddie LaFond, C. U. athletic director, cheerfully made the Card gym available and Jim McPadden, Catholic's intramural sports director, willingly agreed to round up a wheel-chair team to play the paraplegics.

There will be an admission charge of $1 with every cent realized from the game going to defray expenses of the 21-man squad.

The Charioteers, who average 30 points per game, come here from Richmond, Va., where on Thursday evening they play the McGuire General Hospital team. The Californians, unbeaten on their present cross-country tour, are seeking the National Wheelchair championship.

The nonprofit junket is under the cosponsorship of the National Headquarters of the Military Order of Purple Heart and the Los Angeles County Council of the American Legion. Expenses for the tour were guaranteed by a group of Los Angeles sportsmen.

Wheelchair basketball is now played in almost every veterans' hospital in the Nation. The two teams in Friday's game will play four 10-minute periods.

Skier, Minus Skis, Almost Wins Jump the Hard Way

RENO, NEV., Feb. 23 (AP).—Bob Hector didn't win the ski-jumping event because his skis came off—but what a broad jump!

Hector, Oregon State College skier, competing in the University of Nevada winter carnival ski meet at Mount Rose Sunday, lost both skis in midair after making a perfect takeoff.

He landed on both boots, slid and then ran several steps before doing a forward somersault to wind up standing and unhurt.

And the ski-less wonder had sailed through the air 63 feet before making his unorthodox landing—only five feet short of the winning 68-foot leap.

School Teacher Scores 74 Points in Game

San Francisco, Feb. 23 23 (U.P.).—Jack Tweedie, a high school mathematics teacher who wasn't good enough to make the Southern California team in his college days, broke the AAU basketball tournament record of 45 points for one game last night.

And how! Tweedie scored 74 points as his team won, 108 to 29, over a Veterans Administration quintet.

Shea Says 'No'

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Frank (Spec) Shea, right-handed pitcher who won 14 games with the New York Yankees last year, rejected another contract today after conferring with General Manager George Weiss for an hour.

"We made Shea the best offer ever made to a sophomore pitcher with the club. "That ends our negotiating. He could either take it or leave it and Shea decided to leave it," Weiss said.

Trout Takes Paycut

Detroit, Feb. 23 (AP).—Paul (Dizzy) Trout, 32-year-old veteran of the Detroit Tigers pitching staff, signed his 1948 contract today, accepting a pay cut that will put his salary at approximately $18,000 for the next season. Trout won only 10 games and lost 11 a year ago while drawing a pay check of more than $20,000.

Didrikson Decides She Wants to Become Ski Champion—And She Probably Will

By Whitney Martin

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—We thought we no longer could be astonished by anything the slightly fabulous Babe Didrikson Zaharias says she will do, and does, but her latest brain child leaves us wordless. After the first 500 words, anyway.

The Babe wants to be the women's national ski champion! Not only that, she blandly says she will be.

The amazing part of it is that she never was on a pair of skiis in her life until a week or so ago.

For anyone to express such confidence after such limited experience can't be quite comprehended by a guy who can't even stand on his dignity, let alone a pair of those warped bed slats.

Babe had her formal introduction to a pair of skiis at the Commonwealth Country Club at Boston the other day, and says the experience was the biggest sports thrill of her life, which has consisted largely of one thrilling experience after another.

"I started in on the smallest hill there," she says. "Pretty soon I would outgrow that one, and move to the next larger hill. After awhile, I was going down the biggest hill, zipping in and out among the other people, and making little jumps of 26-27 feet.

"And I never fell once," she adds a little proudly. "Must have made about 120 runs. Believe me, it was hard work climbing those hills until the ski tow started operating."

Babe, with exceptional muscular coordination, comes by the knack of remaining upright on skiis naturally. Her mother was a skii champion in Norway.

"She used to skii right down into Oslo," Babe relates. "I'll have plenty of chance to practice in the mountains around Denver. It's going to be tough on George."

George is Babe's husband, and he's built along what might be termed generous lines. Put George on a pair of skis and head him downhill and he'd make an avalanche seem like a few rolling pebbles. He'd really cut a path through the countryside.

For the past week Babe has been appearing in a sportsman's show here, coming on for her act right between the knife thrower and the slingshot artist.

Her stint consists of taking a golf club and pitching tennis balls to remote hideouts in Grand Central Palace, and she is quite accurate in dropping the balls into the reaching paws of spectators who get her attention.

Makes New Fans

This Settles It: Television Hikes Crowd

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The new thing today is television. You can't go anywhere on the sports beat without hearing debates about the effect which the iconoscope is going to have at the box office.

Somebody always insists that when there is a receiving screen in every home there will be no cash customers in the grandstand or ringside seats.

The notion here is that the contrary will be true. The worry warts in sport expressed exactly the same fears when radio was new.

When Tex Richard's promotion of a title fight between Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney laid an egg, Tex didn't blame its financial failure on the fact that he had offered a bum attraction.

He blamed radio and vowed he never again would sell broadcasting rights to a big fight for any sum less than the total price for every seat in the house.

A promoter was stupied, he declared, to let the radio people give away a show he was trying to sell.

Baseball owners were split on the issue, too. Some welcomed broadcasters, for a consideration. Others wouldn't have a microphone in the park.

Some permitted the broadcasting of weekday games but kept the Sunday and holiday attractions off the air so that fan interest whipped up during the week could be funneled through the turnstiles on the big days.

ULTIMATELY, they all took ether. Over the years it has been demonstrated that radio does open up new sales territories. Hearing an event described is not the same thing as seeing it. In some cases the difference is frightening.

A man whose interest has been needled by wireless develops an appetite for the undiluted stuff. Today gate receipts in virtually all sports are greater than ever before, and the broadcast version is only a consolation prize for those who cannot attend in person.

There'll always be doubts—crossline.

The story will be substantially the same with television.

The clearest image that can be reproduced on a screen can't ever be more than a picture. As compared with the real thing, the picture will be second choice.

And as fan-appeal continues to widen, more and more readers will turn to the sports pages for descriptions, analyses and comment on the competition that has attracted them.

Sometimes, though, promoters will be assailed by doubts. Today there's never a ball club that falls upon evil times without receiving letters which begin, "I have always been a loyal fan but your team stinks and I'm through; I'll never listen to one of your games again."

At times like these, the promoter can't help wondering if the game is worth the candle.

Ramblers Play Central Friday Night

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Eastern's Ramblers won their way into fourth place in the Interhigh Playoffs last night as they upset McKinley Tech's Trainers, 42-30, before 1248 fans at the National Guard Armory.

The smooth-working Ramblers will meet the first-place Central team in the semifinals for the championship Friday night at the Armory. In the other semifinal, second-place Roosevelt will clash with third-place Woodrow Wilson.

The ease with which Eastern pulled into a 9-1 lead midway in the first quarter came as a surprise. In a meeting between these same two teams two weeks ago Tech emerged victor, 43-40.

Wickers Well Covered

After the Ramblers took a 10-1 lead into the second quarter, there was little doubt about the outcome. The Ramblers were passing smoothly, and had pulled down a tight blanket around Tech's high scoring star, Buddy Wickers.

Eastern improved its margin to 24-13 at halftime, and 32-20 at the three quarter mark. Tech showed a little life in the last period, and cut the deficit to 34-27 with three minutes to go, but the Ramblers rallied to pull away again.

When Tech left the floor, loser in the battle for the lone remaining playoff berth, it marked the first time a Trainer team had failed to make the title round in eight years under the direction of Coach Hiram (Dutch) Uslaner.

Eastern's honors were shared by Sonny Wesley, John Brown, Harry Wharm, Spike Barouth and even Reserve Jim Lamon.

Brown, who usually does much of Eastern's scoring, played an inspired defensive game, collaborating with Wharm in holding Wickers down to two field goals in the first three quarters.

Wesley and Barouth took over the point-making burden with 10 and nine points. And Lamon, when he was in there, grabbed most of the rebounds, and outscrapped the Trainers all over the floor.

Snavely Says 'No' to Dons

Chapel Hill, N. C., Feb. 23 (AP).—Head Football Coach Carl Snavely of the University of North Carolina said today he had declined an offer to become coach of the Los Angeles Dons of the All-America Conference.

The 56-year-old Snavely was reportedly offered $25,000 a year plus a commission to coach the pro club.

He is under a five-year contract here which has two years to run.

Snavely said in a statement that the Dons had made him a "fair and generous" offer but that when "Mrs. Snavely and I came face to face with the termination of our Carolina associations and with the thought that the work in which so many of us have joined might be impaired, we simply found ourselves unable to leave."

G.W.-W.L. Solution

Approved List of Officials May Prevent High Disputes

A list of approved basketball officials will be drawn up this spring to prevent disputes of the type that last Friday brought relations between George Washington of Alexandria and Washington-Lee of Arlington to a boiling point.

Richard Fletcher, executive secretary of the Virginia High School League made the announcement yesterday in Charlottesville, Va.

The G. W. vs. W.-L. dispute occurred last Friday over whether officials from a new northern Virginia organization or from the Washington board would officiate their game in Arlington. G. W. wanted to use the District group to officiate, while W.-L. preferred the northern Virginia group.

When the two couldn't reach an agreement, the game was canceled and G. W.'s Athletic Director Al Doran threatened to break off relations with the Arlington school.

Fletcher said yesterday: "There are two sides to every dispute, including the one between G. W. and W.-L. We believe that the only way to prevent similar occurences in the future is to draw up a list of officials, approved by all the schools, before the next season starts."

Fletcher added, "that even though the northern Virginia group isn't recognized as yet by the Board of National Approved Officials, the Virginia schools may okay it for next year. That's not intended to slap at G. W., but simply to give everyone a break, and make everyone happy."

Doran said yesterday that some sort of agreement will have to be reached between G. W. and W.-L. if athletic relations are to continue.

Holy Cross, Kentucky Are Cinches

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Only defending champion, Holy Cross College, in this year's NCAA and Kentucky in the National Invitation loomed today as sure-fire repeaters from last season's major postseason basketball tournaments.

The lineup for the NCAA, which gets under way in Kansas City and New York next March 18, is virtually set with the eight district and conference champions eligible.

Although only one conference champ, Baylor in the Southwest, has definitely been decided, at least three other teams are practically "in." They are Holy Cross (18-3), representing the New England section (district 1); undefeated New York University (17-0), in the Middle Atlantic section (district 2), and Brigham Young (13-9), in the Rocky Mountain territory (district 7). Baylor's record is 18-4, including 10 wins and no defeats in conference competition.

Garden Field Limited

The field for the National Invitation, which gets under way on March 11 at New York's Madison Square Garden, has narrowed down to 18 teams. The selection committee, headed by Chairman Asa Bushnell, plans to mail the invitations next Wednesday.

In addition to Kentucky, semi-finalists in the '47 playoffs, St. Louis University (19-2), Western Kentucky (23-1) and De Paul (19-5), appear certainties to receive invitations. Kentucky, beaten only by Temple and Notre Dame, has won 25 games.

Others in the probable list include Bradley (25-2), Texas (17-4), Tulane (19-2), Bowling Green (24-5), Loyola of Chicago (23-8), La Salle of Philadelphia (17-2), Seton Hall (18-3), Rhode Island State (16-3), Muhlenberg (15-3), West Virginia (13-3), Colgate (11-3), Kansas State (18-3), Long Island University (14-4) and City College (14-3).

Of course much depends upon what happens this week. A crushing defeat suffered by any of these eligibles might kill off their chances.

Utah Not Considered

Such quintets as Utah, last year's winner; Duquesne and St. John's of '47 invitation crop, apparently are not under consideration. LIU and West Virginia are among the probalities. North Carolina State, the remaining participant, is expected to enter the NCAA this year.

Besides Holy Cross, the only other squad from the '47 NCAA lineup with a chance this season is Oregon State. However, the Beavers' chances are slim. Currently trailing Washington in the northern division, they must not only win their division championship but also defeat the southern champ in order to represent the Pacific Coast.

Navy Has No Chance

The chances of Navy, City College, Wisconsin, Texas, Wyoming and Oklahoma, who participated last year, appear almost negligible.

The most likely looking playmates for Holy Cross, NYU, Baylor and Brigham Young in this year's NCAA, appear to be N. C. State (23-2), in the Southeast (District 3); Michigan (11-5), in the Midwest (District 4); Oklahoma A. & M. in the Missouri Valley-Big Seven playoff (District 5), and California (21-6) on the Pacific Coast (District 8).

Still Out in Cold

Negroes Claim Their Bid For Organized Ball Rejected

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Negro baseball, wobbly at the boxoffice after the loss of Jackie Robinson, claims it was turned down cold last December when it asked admission to organized baseball.

The Rev. John J. Johnson, president of the Negro National League, said today in a written statement that the National Association of Minor Leagues had rejected the application. Both the National and American Negro leagues applied, he said.

Action by the Negro leagues was the result of a September, 1945, report by Larry MacPhail, then New York Yankee president. He was serving in a committee headed by the Rev. Johnson as chairman. Branch Rickey, Brooklyn president, also was a member of the group appointed by the late Mayor LaGuardia to consider the problem of the Negro in baseball.

MacPhail recommended the majors help strengthen the Negro leagues and take action to admit them into organized baseball "after their house had been put in order."

The Rev. Johnson, said his league improved scheduling, adopted a new constitution and uniform contracts to meet MacPhail's suggestions.

"Yet, it is significant," he said, "that in spite of improved organization, when these two Negro leagues made formal application for admission to organized baseball in December, 1947, at the Miami meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, they were turned down cold.

"Two years after MacPhail's recommendations were made, the Negro leagues still possess no status, no voice, no rights, no relationship at all to the major or the minor leagues."

Although he said he took great care to avoid offense because he still hopes the Negro leagues will be accepted, Rev. Johnson said "never has anything been done to implement that report."

Mauriello Fight Off

London, Feb. 23 (AP).—Promoter Jack Solomons today called off plans for a light-heavyweight fight between Freddie Mills of Great Britain, and Tami Mauriello of New York at London's Harringay Arena on April 19.

Bowie Races Assured of Fine Field

When Bowie opens the Maryland racing season five weeks from today, March 29, there will not be a shortage of horses, according to Frank Cronan who beats the publicity drums for the Prince George County oval.

More than 1500 applications for stall space have been received by Richard Pending, track superintendent, and there is every indication that the total will swell in the next few weeks.

The demand for action during the two weeks of the Bowie meeting that goes through to April 11, is far above the expectations of President-General Manager Joseph Farrell and his assistant Eddie O'Hara.

The Stake Dates

The scheduled early openings of New York, New Jersey and New England tracks this year had made predictions on the number and caliber of horses to start the Maryland season questionable.

However, Bowie failed to reduce its stake values and the four fixtures, for which nominations close on March 15, are being lined up with class horses from many of the Nation's top stables.

The stake dates are: March 29—Rowe Memorial Handicap, $10,000 added; April 3—Bowie Handicap, $10,000 added; April 7—Bowie Kindergarten for 2-year-olds only, $7500 added; April 10—Southern Maryland Handicap, $10,000 added.

300 Already on Hand

Cronan said more than 300 horses are already at Bowie, and prior to Sunday's snow, workouts were in progress. Laurel is slated to open its track to horsemen in the near future.

The revised Maryland dates are: Bowie—March 29 through April 11; Havre de Grace—April 12 through May 1 (no racing April 19, 20, 26, 27); Pimlico—May 3 through May 15; Havre de Grace—July 6 through 17; Laurel—September 30 through October 28; Pimlico—October 29 through November 12; Bowie November 13 through 27. —WALTER HAIGHT

Pep Is 11-5 to Win Tonight

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP).—For the second time since his near-fatal plane crash last year, Willie Pep will defend his world featherweight championship tomorrow night in a bout that may set a couple of personal records for him.

The chunky little Hartford, Conn., fighter encounters Humberto Sierra, a rangy Cuban who was one of Willie's 14 victims in seven months of intensive scrapping.

Tomorrow's 15-round title tilt will be held outdoors in the Orange Bowl.

Pep has been established as an 11-to-5 favorite in the betting despite some local support for Sierra, who has done most of his fighting in the United States right here in Miami.

Rain Postpones Golf

Villanova Another Tough Foe for Hoyas

Georgetown catches another red-hot basketball rival in the Armory Wednesday night when the Hoyas meet Villanova College.

Villanova's Wildcats come to town with a season's record of 14 wins and 7 losses. That may not be too impressive, but this is:

In recent games, Villanova has defeated Seton Hall, 68-60; Rhode Island State, 98-85, and St. Francis of Brooklyn, 52-47.

Villanova has a scoring average of more than 65 points per game and is the highest scoring team in the school's history.

All members of this year's 10-man squad are sophomores.

Perhaps the prize performer is Paul Arizen, a 6-3, 19-year-old lad from Philadelphia.

Arizen did not play highschool basketball, but he attracted attention in neighborhood leagues.

When he finally reported for the Villanova squad, Arizen explained that he did not try to make the team in his freshman year because he was concentrating on studies.

It turned out that he is a straight A student in chemical engineering, one of the more difficult courses.

In Villanova's 68-60 victory over Seton Hall, Arizen scored 27 points, mainly on a jump shot.

Maryland's 'B' Team Wins, 57-34

The University of Maryland "B" team defeated Montgomery Junior College, 57 to 34, last night in a basketball game played in the Bethesda Chevy Chase school gym.

Damage? Children's beds, clothing and toys ruined. Insured? Yes.

But Ellen Marie Farkas, mindful that it might have been worse, retained her sense of humor.

She said, "When the firemen threw the old comforter out of the window, it burst and the whole block is covered with tiny feathers. I guess the neighbors will think it was a publicity stunt—Andy trying to advertise the Redskins."

Heap Big Chief Mickey came to the phone. He silent. He just very young Indian. He know nothing about pyrotechnics—and I didn't know how to spell it until I asked three guys.

Baroudi Pilot Faces Ban

Chicago, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Illinois State Athletic Commission today ordered Mike Spinelli, New York textile trucker, to show cause on March 8 why he should not be suspended as a boxing manager in connection with the ring death of Sam Baroudi.

The commission said that as Baroudi's manager, Spinelli falsely gave 21 as the age of the 20-year-old Akron, Ohio, Negro fighter who died of cerebral hemorrhage early Saturday, six hours after to a 10-round bout with Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati.

Under the Illinois code, a fighter under 21 cannot participate in bouts of more than six rounds.

The commission said it intended also to interrogate Spinelli on his "conduct" after Baroudi was floored by Charles in the tenth round of their Chicago Stadium fight Friday night.

At a coroner's inquest Saturday it was disclosed that Spinelli attempted to catch a plane for New York several hours before Baroudi died at Columbus Hospital and had with him his fighter's share of the purse, $4000. Spinelli missed the plane, and when accosted by photographers and newsmen returned to the inquest.

Browns Trade Rights to Chappius

Cleveland, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Cleveland Browns tonight gave up draft rights to Bob Chappuis, Michigan's great halfback.

Details of the deal were not revealed, but Coach Paul Brown said the All-America Conference champions traded their draft rights to Chappuis to another conference club for players to be named later.

The trade was made "with a view to strengthening the overall league structure," the announcement said. That means the halfback from the Big Nine and Rose Bowl championship team will play for the Brooklyn Dodgers, Chicago Rockets or Baltimore Colts if he signs with the junior professional football loop.

Gilmartin Team Wins

The Gilmartin seventh graders defeated St. Albans, 16 to 9, in a basketball game yesterday at St. Albans. William Titlow scored 12 of the winners' 16 points.

Business Outlook

Maybe You'd Be Rothschild If You'd Bought Irish Bonds

By J. A. Livingston

IF YOU FANCY YOURSELF as a great financial genius, if you like to imagine yourself in a class with Nathan Mayer Rothschild or Bernard Mannes Baruch, then just turn to pages 16 and 17 of Volume I, Number I of "International Monetary Statistics" just published by the International Monetary Fund. You'll see the opportunity you missed. You might have been a millionaire today if you had the knowledge, acumen, faith, capital and a plunger's instinct seven years ago.

Livingston

You'll see the year - by - year quotations of Irish 5s of 1960. The bonds could have been picked up at 55 and less during 1941. That was the time to hock your wife's engagement ring and buy. The interest alone would have been nearly 10 per cent a year. And the appreciation! By 1944—three years later—you could have sold out at 102. A profit of $470 a bond!

Of course, you probably never would have thought of buying Irish bonds. Probably you didn't even know such bonds were outstanding until your eye happened to run down the column of figures. And even if you had, you might have been deterred by a man named Hitler, who was then hovering over Europe. He might have decided at any time to pay a call on Prime Minister Churchill via Ireland. All of which would not have been good for Irish credit.

YOU NEEDN'T let your eyes and imagination stick at Ireland. Let them play on Denmark 4½s of 1962 on the same page. You could have bought them at less than 22 in 1941. That's what Nathan Rothschild might have done. He had faith in the British armies when Napoleon was overrunning Europe. And he might have felt anew that Britain and her allies would throw the Germans out of Denmark. What a parlay that would have been! Those bonds later sold at 100. And there were other possibilities for a Rothschild coup, such as Antwerp 5s of 1945 at 14 or Norway 4½s of 1957 at 30. Both issues subsequently reached par.

As your eye takes its Cook's tour about the page, you see that Australian 3¾s sold down to 53 in 1940. Why? Fear of Japanese invasion. Your tour helps you relive the war! Country by country, you see how being neutral helped Argentina. Its 4s of 1972 sold at 64 in 1940, but rose steadily thereafter. And in 1946 the table contained this blunt termination: "Paid off."

You visit the gold mines of the world. You note how gold production dropped in the Union of South Africa, Australia and the United States. With a war on, with men being killed, with guns and shells and battleships at a premium, people had no time for gold digging. But now production is up again, and you can see how gold was redistributed by the war. United States holdings rose from 14½ billions in 1938 to nearly 23 billions. France's holdings went down and Great Britain stopped reporting hers. Such are the fortunes of war.

ALL TOLD, there are 133 statistical pages. Each country—from Argentina to Yugoslavia—gets two pages. You can follow, for example, how Canada's industrial production has gone up 60 per cent since '37, how its money supply has tripled (even as ours) and how living costs have risen 40 per cent as against our 70 per cent since '39.

And so you learn the economic trials of nations throughout the world—the value of their currencies, the rise and fall of men's hopes and fears. You observe that in most countries stock prices did not advance as rapidly as wholesale prices. People have been afraid to take risks. In Denmark, for example, stock prices went up only about one third since 1939, but wholesale prices doubled. You mutter to yourself, "And I was taught in college that stocks are an inflation hedge!"

When you reach Finland, on page 60, you see that stocks advanced 200 per cent, prices 700 per cent. In the Netherlands the respective increases were 138 and 167 per cent. So you feel more and more convinced that you got short-changed in your economics classes.

You gather during your travels that foreign trade of most countries is coming back nicely now that the war is over. Cuban shipments of sugar, for example, are double what they were in 1945 and four times 1936. You note that Czechoslovakia's steel production is now above what it was in 1939.

All in all, you can feel that this is a nice book to have around. Not that you'd use it every day. And not that all data are up to date. For some countries, like Iran or China, the information is much sparser than for countries like the United States, United Kingdom, Italy or Canada. But when you want international economic data, here they are at your finger tips.

International Monetary Fund statisticians are not ready yet to take you on a round-the-world statistical tour. Data on Germany and Japan are now being completed and will appear in a monthly issue shortly. As for Soviet Russia, the iron curtain hangs as usual. Guess that makes the volume official, authentic, and just as you'd expect it. But there's hope.

Amazing new way to relieve nausea of
MOTION SICKNESS
Most people suffer from "motion sickness" in one form or another. When the motion of a boat nauseates you, it's called seasickness. On a bus or in an auto, it's known as carsickness. In an airplane, it's airsickness. Once accepted as hopeless . . . there's wonderful, good news coming out of the medical world today.
IT'S CALLED TRIP-EZE
It's an amazing new preparation. Army and Navy doctors put these ingredients together during the war to combat air and seasickness. Now it is sold commercially. You chew this medicated gum as an aid in preventing and relieving this ancient malady. It proved effective as a preventative in 90% of the cases reported.
Chew Trip-eze before boarding the plane, bus, train or boat. Over thirty airlines, American and foreign, accept Trip-eze to aid in preventing and relieving airsickness.
Your druggist now has a new supply. Money back if Trip-eze doesn't help you.

Monument Repair Needs Are Discussed

Need for repairs to the Washington Monument, officially open since October 9, 1888, was discussed in a report on the structure delivered yesterday before the Washington National Monument Society.

The society, holding its 115th annual meeting at a local club, heard the report read by its secretary William R. Harr. The report was prepared by Arthur E. Demaray, associated director of the National Park Service.

He declared experiments have been made with a product known as Deckosit in patching the chipped area below the 150-foot level of the monument. Chips were attributed to the ravages of time. Deckosit is a product invented by Herluf Ras. of Denmark, and already is in extensive use in Europe.

Demaray said that after consultations with the Fine Arts Commission, there has been general agreement that something should be done, when funds are available, to improve the entrance space within the memorial.

Also under consideration is an appropriate design for the obstruction lights at the 500-foot level.

Demaray gave no reason for the drop in recent attendance at the Washington Monument. Last year, 51,436 fewer persons visited the structure than in the preceding year, although revenue from the elevator service charge increased from $38,417 to $50,095.50 for the 1947 fiscal year, a sum greater than maintenance and operation cost of the memorial.

Since its opening, the Monument has been visited by 21,971,777 persons, of whom about a seventh walked to the top of the memorial.

Coffee With Murals

New House Plans An Arty Lounge

By Richard L. Coe

MEN ABOUT TOWN: Clark Foreman takes us on a tour of the Dupont Theater, which will be opening, he assures us, around the middle of March . . . This, as any patron of the Mount Pleasant streetcars can tell you, is in the once embattled Dupont Circle apartment hotel, and a finer location for the sort of theater Foreman dreams of would be hard to find . . . The theater will seat 400, is neatly modern in design and will house an innovation or two by the time it's many months old . . . There's also to be a lounge—serving tea and coffee, if you please—which will have cinema-inspired murals by Ben Shahn, a name that means something in the art world . . . Until the Shahn murals are ready, there'll be an exhibition of sculpture, including some of the work of American University's lively art department . . . The sunny side of 40, Foreman is stepping into a new world as one of the men behind the Dupont . . . He's a Georgian, a former Ickes aide and an affectionate torchbearer of the New Deal . . . Among his dreams for the Dupont is a grand idea: one-shot revivals on the style of New York's Museum of Modern Art . . . These he sees as a Sunday morning feature, quite apart from the regular "good from all over the world"" films . . . Like the Miller-Lopert Playhouse, on 15th st., the Dupont has been having to push its opening date forward for those same reasons that harry you new-home builders these days . . . But from the looks of the interior and the Foreman booking charts, along about March 19 our town will have a new theater, and in a location which showmen have been eyeing for years and years . . . More on the Dupont as things develop.

LEO BRADY, whose reviews have brightened this page for some months, is getting too busy with his regular assignments as a professor of Catholic University's drama department, and we regret you'll be reading Leo no more . . . At the moment he's readying "The Portion of Foxes" for next Sunday's opening in that converted GI theater on the C. U. campus . . . We'll miss you, Leo . . . The new reviewer you've been reading is Orval Hopkins, an indefatigable staff member who, on Sundays, hides behind the initials O. B. H. in that titivating travel column, "Whistle Stopping" . . . Hoppy's viewpoints will be those of a Far Westerner, leavened by California sunshine, a stretch as a Navy officer, a particularly astute wife and three lively youngsters . . . Oh, yes, he'd acted in umpteen plays, too . . . Sharp type, Hopkins.

"HARVEY" will be along in the person of Frank Fay at the National this spring . . . This doesn't mean the New York run is ending . . . For some time now, couple of years, say, Frank has been wanting to take to the road, and now Producer Brock Pemberton has it worked out . . . Jimmy Stewart will take Fay's place for a month beginning March 29 on 48th st., and after that Brock's luring people like Gary Cooper, Cary Grant and, some say, Clark Gable . . . Anyway Fay, his rabbit and a new company will be down after Philadelphia, though how long they'll stay on Loucst st. is anyone's guess.

BORIS KARLOFF, between performances and rehearsals of "The Linden Tree," will be visiting his new grandnephew, son of his niece, Mrs. Tom Bromley, whose husband is on the British Embassy staff . . . Even a baby has no need to be frightened of Uncle William (Boris Karloff, as we told you Sunday, is just a stage name for William Henry Pratt), for the quondam horror man's current role is that of a quiet university professor in provincial England.

FRANK ALLENBY'S return to Washington for next Sunday's broadcast of the Theater Guild on the Air—a benefit for the Red Cross to start its annual campaign—will find him more established than he was on his opening night last fall . . . That was in "The Winslow Boy," and Allenby's icy portrait of the penetrating lawyer has since become one of the season's most respected portrayals . . . Allenby will be Elizabeth Barrett Browning's 'PaPA" when the Guild airs "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" from Constitution Hall with Madeleine Carroll and Brian Aherne.

RICHARD SKINNER, who'll be associated this summer with Redge Allen and Evelyn Freyman at the Olney, is taking on one more job before packing his luggage . . . He's now company manager for the visiting Gate Theater, and starting March 6 he will offer a course in New York on the running of summer theaters for the American Theater Wing Professional training Program for Veterans . . . From his years with the Washington Civic, the Westchester Playhouse, Bucks County and Westport, Skinner should have a lot to teach . . . Then, at Olney, he'll be able to practice what he preaches.

Una O'Connor in "The Linden Tree," the J. B. Priestley play which opened a week's run last night at the National. Both widely popular for their film roles, this is the first time Washington has seen them together as "round actors." Karloff plays a professor, Miss O'Connor his housekeeper in this nonscary story of life in England today

"THE LINDEN TREE." Maurice Evans Productions, Inc., present a new play by J. B. Priestley. Staged by George Schaefer. Settings by Peter Wolf. Costumes by Frank Thompson Produced under the supervision of Maurice Evans. At the National.

Not American, Girl Held as Spy Admits to Czechs

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 23 (AP).—The United States Embassy said today a 20-year-old girl indicted as a spy is not an American citizen.

The girl, who admits doing espionage work in Czechoslovakia, said at her trial last Monday that her name was Dorothy Brown, and that she was born in Washington, D. C. The trial was halted pending establishment of her citizenship.

American consular officials said they had obtained an affidavit from her to the effect that her name is Dorothy Schellenberg, and that she was born in Weimar, Germany, in 1928. She said she had never been in the United States and has no claim for American help, the officials said.

Jaroslav Kouba, a Czech soldier on trial with her, has testified he gave her a military barracks plan to trap her as a spy "for the Americans and the British."

Alaska's Cut of Timber Reaches Record High

Ketchikan, Alaska (U.P.)—B. Frank Heintzleman, regional forester, reported a record cut of national forest timber in 1947 from Alaska's forest areas.

He said the cut amounted to 93,663,000 board feet on the two national forests in the territory. The cut of 1946 was 54,390,000 board feet.

Money received from the stumpage and commercial cut was $142,235. The territory receives 25 per cent of the sum for operation of schools, roads and trails in the national forests.

Federation Dinner

The Federation of Citizens Associations will hold its thirty-eighth annual dinner March 8 at the Statler Hotel, it was announced yesterday.

Pope Tells 1500 Workers to Shun The Materialistic

Rome, Feb. 23 (U.P.)—Pope Pius told 1500 Italian Catholic trolley car motormen and conductors today to be "stout defenders of the church against materialist doctrines."

The Pope said the trolleymen must "carry out the apostolate of the church, strong in their faith in the midst of those who are trying to undermine it."

"You cannot be with the church and at the same time adhere to materialistic doctrines," he said.

The Pope praised their patience and self control in handling people in overcrowded trolleys, and their honesty in handling money.

Alaska Prospector Says Gold Is Still There

Erie, Pa. (U.P.)—Harold Eide, Alaskan prospector, believes there still is "gold in them thar hills" for the sourdough who can withstand the rigors of Arctic weather.

Eide, a Norwegian, told an audience here that Alaskan gold fields have "barely been scratched," while untapped oil oozes to the surface in other areas.

Eide warns against over-optimism, however. For instance, he said, he spent 18 months alone in waste country before he made a "find."

Eide also warned potential prospectors that Alaskan economy is hard on the pocketbook. He estimated prices there to be about 40 per cent higher than in the United States.

Throngs Greet New Prelate In Baltimore

Baltimore, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Most Rev. Francis P. Keough tonight became the eleventh Archbishop of Baltimore—premier Roman Catholic See of the country—in simple ceremonies in his new residence.

The former Bishop of Providence, R. I., assumed administration of the archdiocese two hours after he was given an unexpected reception by a large crowd which jammed Pennsylvation Station.

The formalities, however, will come tomorrow at the installation ceremony, to be witnessed by six archbishops, 22 bishops, and almost 2000 other clergy and religious.

The archbishop and clergymen who made the trip from Providence with him were surrounded by the milling throng and police details were needed to clear a path.

The smiling, 56-year-old prelate was met by Bishop John M. McNamara, administrator of the archdiocese since the death of Archbishop Michael J. Curley last May; the Most Rev. Lawrence Shehan, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore, and other consultors of the archdiocese.

Mayor Thomas D'Alsandro and other city officials were on hand to welcome Governor John O. Pastors of Rhode Island and other dignitaries from New England who were on the train and who will attend formal installation ceremonies in the Basilica of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary tomorrow morning.

One of the archbishop's first acts after arriving was to visit the cathderal and pray at the main altar, before which three cardinals have received their red hats and about 30 bishops have been consecrated. Afterwards he met with the consultors and presented his credentials from Pope Pius XII.

U. N. Issues Book On Improving World Livestock

Lake Success, Long Island, Feb. 23 (NYHT).—A handbook advocating breeding of some of the world's hardier animals to improve the earth's livestock resources was distributed to 55 member governments today by the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

The FAO pointed out that water buffalo, yaks, reindeer, camels, llamas and alpacas offer advantages in special circumstances, and that breeding improvements might widen usefulness.

Water buffalo give milk and are satisfied with coarse natural pastures.

Yaks are well suited to grazing at high elevations on steep slopes. They give milk and their hair makes good rope.

Reindeer serve as pack animals, draw sleds, give milk and graze on an open range throughout the year.

UMT Voted By Oldest Inhabitants

The Association of Oldest Inhabitants celebrated Washington's birthday yesterday by adopting a resolution favoring universal military training.

"The history of our republic has demonstrated the need of a trained citizenry for protection and security, and the experience of two global wars has brought home the folly of unpreparedness," a resolution declared.

The association gathered in Old Union Engine House, 19th and H sts. nw., for the meeting, an annual event since 1866. As in past years, Washington's Farewell Address was read by a member.

Also adopted by the group was a resolution favoring a year's extension of rent control.

Association President John Claggett Proctor presented the organization with a section of 100-year-old wooden water pipe dug up several weeks ago on Pennsylvania ave. near the National Archives Building.

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) spoke on George Washington, and Proctor read an original poem, "When Washington Crossed the Delaware." After the meeting the committee laid a wreath at the Washington Monument.

Five new members were accepted at the meeting: Patrick Henry Deleplane, 5001 13th st. nw.; Martin R. Cooper, 424 Whittier st. nw.; Lieut. Col. Alexander S. Young, 4934 Upton st. nw.; Michael X. Sullivan, 3100 Ellicott st. nw., and Ludwig Manoly, 9605 Bristol ave., Silver Spring, Md.

Agricultural Hearings Set

By The Associated Press

An Easter holiday swing into Colorado, Utah, Washington and California will wind up the House Agriculture Committee's on-the-spot study of a long-range agricultural policy.

Chairman Hope (R., Kans.) announced yesterday that hearings are scheduled for Denver, March 22; Salt Lake City, March 23; Spokane, March 25 and Fresno March 29.

These cities were on the list for hearings last fall when the committee's trip was cut short by the special session of Congress.

Chile President Hits British Criticisms

Santiago, Chile, Feb. 23 (AP).—President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla said today criticisms in Britain of Chile's activities in the Antarctic were "symptoms of decadence." He said he hoped they were not shared by the "democratic English people."

His statement was radioed from the naval transport Pinto which is bringing him back from territory in dispute among Chile, Argentina and Britain. He formally established two military bases there last week.

Arlington Board Asked to Aid in Bus Fare Protest

The Arlington County Board has been asked to help county residents protest a request for a fare increase by the AB&W Transit Co. at a hearing March 19 before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The request was made in a letter sent by the Fairlington Association's transportation committee to Arlington County Board Chairman Daniel A. Dugan. Committee Chairman T. P. Proctor said 500 Fairlington residents earlier had petitioned ICC to suspend the tariff and hold hearings on the AB&W's fare proposal.

Proctor said the question of Arlington County aid in the hearings probably would come before the county board Saturday. After the board's views are known, the Fairlington Association and representatives of seven other Arlington civic groups will hold a meeting to organize action against the requested fare increase, he said.

Brazil Resources Study Is Planned

By The Associated Press

The State Department yesterday announced creation of a joint Brazil-United States commission to study Brazilian resources and capacity for economic development.

The commission will consist of three members from the United States and three from Brazil. It is now being organized and the State Department said that "its work in Brazil is expected to begin at an early date."

British Merchant Fleet Approaching Prewar Tonnage

London, Feb. 23 (AP).—Britain's merchant fleet is nearing restoration despite "unparalleled wartime losses," the Chamber of Shipping of the United Kingdom said tonight.

In 1939, the mercantile fleet stood at 17,750,000 gross tons. Despite the losses, the tonnage at the end of 1947 was 16 million, including one million tons of returnable tonnage.

A total of 1,500,000 gross tons of ships are building in British shipyards for British owners.

The British purchased £45,000,000 ($180,000,000) worth of warbuilt ships from the United States.

Moses and Beanstalk Make Farming Pay

Del Mar, Calif. (U.P.).—Moses Kauffman, local farmer, says he now is growing beanstalks that reach 12 feet in height and produce 8000 pounds of beans to the acre.

Kauffman, a native of Russia, came to the United States in 1905 and to California in 1926. He went to Palestine 44 years ago to study the new agricultural development of the Jewish colonies and was impressed by the new bean plant there.

He brought the seeds back to this country and has developed them so that one plant will feed 10 persons from 10 to 12 years. He gets two crops a year from plantings on his Del Mar farm.

Rep. Rankin Hits Negro Doctor Plan For Gallinger

Representative John E. Rankin (D., Miss.) yesterday sharply criticized the plan to let Negro doctors practice at Gallinger Hospital.

Rankin told the House that the plan "is already stirring resentment, and cannot possibly do any good."

"I submit that when the attempt is made thus to humiliate the white doctors and the white patients who are bound to patronize Gallinger Hospital, it is about time that members of Congress and the President get off of this cheap scheme of playing politics in order to get a few votes in Harlem and in certain other portions of New York City.

Paris Hears AFL, CIO Will Attend Aid Talks

Paris, Feb. 23 (AP).—A reliable labor source said today the American Federation of Labor will attend the March 8 London Trade Union Conference on the Marshall Plan.

European anti-Communist labor circles saw the start of a "bipartisan foreign policy" by the AFL and the CIO, which also will attend.

VA Reduction Program Threatens Long-Time Employes

VA: An extreme case of how long-time career employes are hurt in reductions of force is now developing in the Veterans Administration. Briefly, this is the picture:

Several hundred employes with up to 30 years of service will either be given dismissal notices or be asked to take demotions in grade up to seven (yes, 7) grades.

In one office I know about four people with 30 years of service are due to be let out, and three career people who have CAF-11 positions will be asked to take CAF-4 clerical jobs. Demotions of two and three grades will be common among the employes slated for the ax.

The layoffs and demotions will hit, for the most part, the career nonveteran group. Here's why: Ninety-seven per cent of VA's male employes here are veterans and many of them have recently acquired permanent status. In making layoffs, Civil Service requires the nonveterans in each status group to be fired before veterans, regardless of length of service and other factors.

This policy means that career nonveterans with up to 30 years of service are being fired before permanent status veterans with three and four years of service. In a number of instances veterans were brought in and trained by long-service nonveteran supervisors. The supervisors are now being fired or demoted and their former "students" are being moved into their jobs.

To me, the reaction has been most unusual—just the opposite what you'd think. Not a single nonveteran employe has complained to me over his pending discharge or demotion, but fully a dozen veterans—including several VA officials who are veterans—are outspoken in their criticism over the layoff rules.

In fact, one VA official told me he was losing two long-service nonveterans and no half dozen other people he's seen—veterans or nonveterans—could fill their job as well. Nearly everyone who has talked with me has made acid remarks about the "merit system."

However, the VA layoff won't be as drastic as it has been advertised elsewhere. The VA employment picture will be exactly as reported here—employment will slump temporarily and then rise to an even higher figure than it is now.

VA won't fire 1400 employes here before June as reported so frequently. Actually, layoff notices will go out to 386 employes, but about 100 of these people who are clerical workers will be reassigned to the VA insurance offices before the notices go into effect.

VA will start to move about 1100 insurance jobs back here from New York on April 1. The clerical people among the 386 due to be fired will be reassigned to those jobs. Also, a number of the remaining 386 will be given "offers" in the insurance section, but the offers would require demotions of several grades.

GOVERNMENT GIRLS: The Negro Government Girls have a worthy project. They want the Lucy Diggs Slowe dormitory maintained exclusively for Negro Government Girls during the life of the building. The Government owns the dormitory which is of permanent structure. Since the Government has closed Guam and Wake halls and will close Midway in June, it certainly should permanently maintain at least one dormitory for Negro girls.

COLONY—It seems that many Federal employes (present and retired) are interested in the establishment of a colony of retired employes. An organization meeting will be held here soon of those interested in the project. The plan is to build 50 homes for retired people at Deming, N. Mex., a wonderful spot in the Southwest. Additional details may be had by contacting either Wallace E. Moesner, 3426 16th st. nw., of the Deming Chamber of Commerce.

NBS: The first cash awards for valuable suggestions have been given to these employes of the National Bureau of Standards:

Charles F. Collett of the Meteorology division, $100; Charles Hyder, an instrument maker; Douglas L. Hogan of the office staff, and William E. Fells, a technician, $50 each, and Dr. Frank R. Howard of the heat and power division, $25. Collett's suggestion will speed up by at least 300 per cent the time it takes for Internal Revenue agents to determine the alcoholic content of whisky and other beverages.

PAY STRATEGY: The House Civil Service Committee will open hearings tomorrow on the 40-odd Federal employe pay raise bills before it.

The Administration dodged the Senate pay raise hearings. If it ignores the House committee, it will very likely get a bill it doesn't want. And it will have only itself to blame.

But the President said in his budget message that he was opposed to pay raises at this time. How to reconcile that view with the indorsement of a pay raise plan is the problem faced by Administration planners.

The best guess is that the Administration will present a pay plan to the committee—but perhaps one that won't involve any large amount of money. But the Congress could take the Administration pay pattern and use it to give Federal workers pay raises.

It now appears that the House committee will vote out the Rees bill to give most Federal employes $420 temporary cost-of-living bonus.

New Violence Flares in GSI Cafe Strike

Pickets, Workers Scuffle in Front of Arlington Farms

CSI Personnel Manager J. C. Niehuss said there was a scuffle between pickets and nonstrikers yesterday morning at the Arlington FarmsCafeteria, one of 42 operated by Government Services, Inc., in Federal buildings.

Niehuss accused some of the strikers of "chasing the employes into the dormitories." He said one picket swung a fist at a supervisory employe "but no damage was done." The picket line, declared Niehuss, "was so dense that patrons couldn't get into the building."

However, Oliver T. Palmer, business agent for the striking union, Local 471 of the UPW Cafeteria Workers (CIO), said the supervisory employe "provoked the whole thing."

"He made himself so officious," said Palmer, "as to start conducting strike breakers through our lines. He hit one of our people, I don't know where they get the authority to interfere with orderly picket lines."

Meanwhile, Conciliator George E. Strong said yesterday he expects to have the strike settled "in the next few days."

Strong, a Washington attorney, was appointed by Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming a week ago to seek a solution to the strike. Strong has been conferring with both sides.

The union threw about 1000 members on picket lines after GSI refused to negotiate a request for a 15-cent hourly wage increase and other new contract provisions. Union officers filed Taft-Hartley non-Communist affidavits later, but GSI insisted they be filed also by the parent union, United Public Workers of America.

Gen. Meyers Trial Will Start Today In District Court

Trial of Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, retired AAF procurement officer, on charges of subornation of perjury is scheduled to start in District Court at 10 a. m. today.

Meyers is accused of prompting Bleriot H. Lamarre, self-styled $50-a-week "dummy president" of a wartime aviation firm, to lie to congressional investigators.

Meyers also faces charges of lying to a congressional committee in connection with his alleged $130,000 "kickback" profits from the aviation firm.

Opening statement by the prosecution will be made by United States Attorney George Morris Fay. He will be assisted in the prosecution by Assistant United States Attorneys John Fihelly and Edward Molenof.

Ruling on a motion filed last Friday by Meyers' attorneys, on whether Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff will disqualify himself on grounds of prejudice, will be heard first.

Mrs. Whitney to Sing With Air Force Units

Mrs. Eleanore Searle Whitney, wife of Assistant Secretary for Air Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, will be the vocalist with the Air Force Concert Orchestra and Glee Club at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow at Lisner Auditorium.

Mrs. Whitney, a coloratura soprano, will sing two solo numbers and one duet with Master Sergt. Abrasha Robofsky, baritone. The concert will open the Colonial Program concert series sponsored by the George Washington University General Alumni Association.

Yorke P. Nicholson

Alexandria Parade Features Washington Birthday in Area

A parade, special Masonic activities, and memorial programs by civic and patriotic groups yesterday concluded the Washington area's observance of George Washington's birthday.

The traditional parade up Washington st. in Alexandria, Va., sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, brought to the thoroughfare hundreds of citizens to view the spectacle in brisk and sunny weather.

Grand Marshal was Maj. Gen. William Hoge, commanding officer of Fort Belvoir, Va., who led the hour-long march together with Alexandria's Mayor William T. Wilkins, Vice Mayor George K. Bender and City Manager Nicholas Colasanto.

Members of City Council, National Commander in Chief Ray Brannaman and Auxiliary National Commander Dorothy Mann of the VFW were in the reviewing stand.

The Alexandria Fire Department was awarded the trophy for the best appearance in the line of march and for having the largest turnout of a non-military organization.

Passing in review were units from Fort Belvoir, Marine, Navy, Waves and Coast Guard detachments, Boy and Girl Scouts, the Penn-Daw and McLean fire departments, as well as the Alexandria firemen, George Washington and Washington-Lee High School bands and cadets, and a number of veterans' and civic organizations.

All-day meetings of national Masonic organizations commemorating the most famous Mason, and a banquet last night by the Alexandria and Washington Masonic groups, concluded a weekend of Masonic activities.

Court of Claims Justice Marvin Jones gave the principal address on Washington at exercises in the Memorial Continental Hall sponsored by the Sons of the American Revolution, Daughters of the American Revolution, Children of the American Revolution and Sons of the Revolution.

Justice Jones said Washington "carried the torch of human liberty farther than any man who ever trod the earth." He spoke of the Constitutional Convention, presided over by Washington, as producing a basic document that contains only 89 sentences yet took four months to write.

At Mount Vernon, wreath-laying ceremonies were conducted by the Irish War Veterans under National Commander George L. Cassiday.

The Washington Centennial Lodge of Masons, formed in 1852 on the anniversary of Washington's first Masonic membership, was represented by Henry A. Mitchler and 150 members in the Mount Vernon observances.

The Washington Monument grounds were decorated with 48 flags representing the States of the Union, and several wreath-laying ceremonies were held there.

Last night the Baltic Scandinavian Society of Washington held a Washington's Birthday dinner, with Dr. Leonard Elstad, president of Gallaudet College, as speaker. A bazaar was held by the Arlington Jewish Center at the Hotel 2400.

Episcopal laymen and boys attended an annual George Washington Birthday communion service at the Church of the Epiphany, conducted by the Very Rev. John W. Suter, dean of Washington Cathedral.

The communion service was followed by a fellowship breakfast at the National Press Club, where former Representative Jennings Randolph of West Virginia spoke. The program was sponsored by the Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

A barbecue and dance celebrating both Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays was held last night by the Republican Club of Prince Georges County at Waldrop's Restaurant, Mount Rainier, Md.

G-Girl Winners Entertained by Army, Navy

The Army and Navy joined forces, although on a comparatively competitive basis, to show Washington's vacationing G-Girls a big weekend in Bermuda.

The Army took over in the afternoon, taking the models for the next sequence of Mary Worth's adventures, on a tour of the air base, followed by a tea dance and dinner at the Plantation Club where the steaks were "wonderful," they said.

Trucks Hauling Full Oil Loads In Maryland

Restrictions Eased After Warning From D. C. Fuel Coordinator

Trucks were hauling full loads of fuel oil over Maryland highways yesterday following alteration Sunday of the State Roads Commission load limitation ruling.

Last Tuesday, in an effort to reduce damage to Maryland highways caused by the recent thaw, the commission limited all two-axled trucks to a gross tonnage of 20,000 pounds. Three-axled vehicles were restricted to carrying 36,000 pounds.

J. Thomas Kennedy, District fuel oil coordinator, had warned that Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties in Maryland would not be permitted to tap the area's emergency oil pool if the Free State enforced the original restrictions.

Sunday the ruling was changed to 49,000 pounds for three-axled fuel trucks on all main highways except the Annapolis highway and the Philadelphia road from the Delaware line to Baltimore. Limit for these two was set at 42,000 pounds. The commission also permitted trucks carrying coal from mines to dealers to haul loads up to 45,000 pounds.

The emergency weight limits set up a week ago remained in force for all other types of loads. Yesterday, Maryland State police stopped several hundred truckers for exceeding the load limits.

Main trap for overloaded trucks was at the Susquehanna River bridge on U. S. 40 between Havre de Grace and Perryville, Md. Truckers stopped there were ordered to post $10 and $100 for appearance in Perryville Magistrate's Court.

Alexandria Crash Suspect Is Recaptured

Alexandria police yesterday recaptured a man who slipped through their fingers Sunday and escaped via a rest room window in the police station.

The man, identified as Marshall Butler, 27, of 216 S. West st., Alexandria, was one of two who on Sunday were involved in a hit-run accident which led to the death of Letter Carrier Jeter C. Long, 53, police said.

According to police, Butler and a companion, Clarance Browley, 25, of Green Valley Trailer Camp, Arlington, were riding in a stolen taxicab when the vehicle hit the letter carrier's car in front of his home on Quaker lane.

The two men reportedly left the scene of the accident and Long and another man, A. G. Kaiser, who happened by, gave chase in another car.

The two pursuers overtook the fleeing cab and stopped it on Route 236 near the Army Quartermaster Depot. Police were summoned and took the two men into custody. Later, at the Alexandria police station, Butler escaped. During the incident, Long collapsed and died at Alexandria Hospital from a heart attack, it was reported.

Lieut. Russell Hawes, Alexandria chief of detectives, said the men were booked for investigation and had not been formally charged last night.

The committee said it did not attempt to speak in the name of the 15 Protestant denominations composing the council, but was offering the recommendations to the churches as a basis for study, and in the hope that community, civic and church leaders "will carefully consider how far they can now be translated into action."

Among recommendations was this: "That Negro citizens be appointed to school boards and to boards of other political, public, civic or social service agencies on the same basis of merit as other citizens."

Building Wrecked

711 G St. Hit By 2d Blaze In 2 Months

The Washington Post

THREE ALARMS — Firemen climb to the second floor at 711 G st. nw., in yesterday's fire

Hillyard Optical At 711 Hit by 2d Blaze in 2 Months

The second three-alarm fire in as many months at 711 G st. nw. yesterday almost destroyed three stories of the building, whose street floor was occupied by the Hillyard Optical Co.

Under orders from Inspector Oscar A. Estep of the Buildings Department, the outer wall of the building, bulging outward from the effects of the fire, was shored up to prevent collapse a few hours after yesterday's blaze.

Estep was notified by Fire Chief Clement Murphy of the sagging condition of the brick wall and made an inspection of the premises which led to the order. The inspector said the wall would have to be torn down. No injuries were reported.

As hundreds of holiday shoppers watched from every corner and from the steps of the Civil Service Commission building across the street, firemen used aerial ladders, smoke masks and tons of water to put out the blaze in about three quarters of an hour, shortly before noon.

The previous fire there, on December 30, caused the death of a fireman, but indirectly may have prevented loss of life yesterday. The upper floors of the four-story building, usually occupied by roomers, were vacant while being rebuilt due to the damage from the December fire. The optical company offices were also being remodeled.

Firemen said yesterday's blaze started in the basement and quickly spread through three floors feeding on building materials. No damage estimate was available, and origin of the fire was not determined yesterday.

The blaze also did some damage to the Nicholson Picture Frame Co. at 709 G st., but apparently did not harm the Taft Hotel on the other side.

Automobile, streetcar and bus traffic was rerouted two blocks away from the burning building and extra details of police were called to keep spectators away.

Woman Shot Three Times, Husband Found Dead

Police Await End Of Her Coma for Light on Baffling Double Tragedy

Police were forced to wait yesterday for a woman with a bullet in her skull to recover consciousness before probing the circumstances surrounding her injury and the strange death of her husband.

Fighting for life in Gallinger Hospital was Mrs. Hazel Woolfolk, 24, of 607 Lamont st. nw., with a bullet near her brain, another bullet wound on her head and one on her neck.

Police said Mrs. Woolfolk was found in a dazed condition on a snowbank near the entrance to Parkfairfax, Va., about 2 a. m. yesterday.

Husband Found Near Track

Five hours later, they said, the woman's husband, Louis L. Woolfolk, 29, also of 607 Lamont st. nw., was found dead beside a railroad track in Potomac Yards.

Unable to link the two incidents, police said they would wait until Mrs. Woolfolk was in condition to be questioned.

In Woolfolk's overcoat, police reported, was a German make automatic pistol. Three shots had apparently been fired from the gun, they said, as there were still two bullets in the clip and one had caused the gun to jam.

Employed as Watchman

Woolfolk was a locomotive watchman employed at Potomac Yards. His body was discovered by W. V. Rogers, a section foreman at the yards, who was operating a motor scooter car along the tracks at the time.

An autopsy on Woolfolk's body showed a severe laceration on the neck and head and he apparently died from loss of blood, Dr. Jefferson Kernodle said. He added that the injury was apparently caused by a "terrific blow."

Md. Tax Surplus To Run 4 Million Over Estimates

Baltimore, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Maryland State surplus by next June will be about four million dollars more than expected if taxes keep coming in at the present rate State Comptroller James J. Lacy said today.

His current estimate of surplus at June 30, 1948, end of the first year of the present budget, is $12,880,906. The "fiscal digest," issued by the Governor and Walter Kirkman, State budget director, estimated the surplus would be only $8,633,993.

Total receipts from all sources in the seven-month period were $72,829,962.

900 Jelleff Store Employes Celebrate Its Golden Jubilee

CELEBRATION—On its fiftieth birthday yesterday, Jelleff's Department Store gave a luncheon for all employes, and a plaque was presented to Frank Jelleff (center). At left, Arthur M. Ingalls, at right, Miss Margaret Gollan, vice president of Jelleff's Inc.

With song and skit, the employes generally demonstrated their affection for genial Frank R. Jelleff, owner of the store.

As the Jelleff store family ate its way through a seven-course luncheon complete with filet migon, it heard how Frank Jelleff had bought into the store now known as Jelleff's back in 1910, when it was "on the wrong side of F st." and had a staff of only 14 people, who sold mostly shirtwaists, laces and ribbons.

The store stayed on the "wrong side of F st.," explained Emcee John C. DeBald, "because we were convinced that the people of Washington would beat a path to our door because we were building better mousetraps."

Forty-four of the employes of the company who had been in the employ of the store for 20 years or more received diamond-studded pins at yesterday's luncheon and 94 others who had been at Jelleff's 10 years or more also were awarded pins.

The employes of the store presented Jelleff with a plaque in honor of the fiftieth anniversay of the store's operation.

Women Voters Urge Limited Home Rule

Mrs. Stone said her organization was disappointed in the deletion of home rule provisions from the original reorganization bill. A home rule measure, however, is now before a joint Home Rule Subcommittee.

The witness also urged that congressional committees be guided by a code of ethics in examining witnesses. She said that when her organization asked to be heard in rebuttal of witnesses before the House Committee on Un-American Activities during the Hollywood Communist probe, the committee did not reply.

Franklin Burdette, political science professor at the University of Maryland, another witness yesterday, suggested a new congressional rule by which filibustering might be ended in the Senate. He recommended that cloture be invoked by a simple majority vote instead of the present two thirds.

Ralph Couch, Publisher, Is Dead at 57

Ralph Ford Couch, 57, publisher and former newspaperman who "scooped" the world on an Eamon de Valera story, died yesterday at Prince Georges Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Couch, one time White House correspondent for the United Press, had been sent to London by the UP in 1918 and when Eamon de Valera escaped from an English prison the following year, located de Valera where others had failed.

Born in Madison, Ohio, Mr. Couch graduated from Western Reserve University in 1913. He worked first for the Cleveland Plain Dealer and the Cleveland Press before joining the UP in 1918. In 1920, he returned from London and went with Science Service.

In the same year, he organized the Ralph Couch-W. H. Grimes Publishing Co., which published economic and statistical bulletins.

On his return to the United States in 1920, Mr. Couch lived until about a year and a half ago, at 1352 Ingraham st. nw., here when he moved to the schooner The Wave, now anchored near the Army War College. He used the schooner as his working headquarters.

Mr. Couch is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Izant Couch, and a niece, Mrs. Anne Couch, professor of biology at Columbia University.

Funeral services will be held today at 2 p. m. at the Lee funeral home and will be followed by a cremation.

The National Press Club named the following committee to represent it at the services: J. P. Yoder, Fred W. Perkins, Homer Joseph Dodge, George W. Stimpson, William Donaldson, jr., Paul McGahan, Jack Daly, Lyle C. Wilson, William Philip Simms, W. H. Grimes, William J. Maddox, Holman Harvey, Lowell Mellett, Ludwell Denny, Thomas L. Stokes and Willard Kiplinger.

Tired, "All-In"—Listless Feeling Brought To Halt

As Vibrant Energy is Released To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Do you get up in the mornings still tired, feel down-and-out all day? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Overwork, undue worry, cold, flu or other illness often wears down the red-blood-cells.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Frail Leader 'A Sick Man'

Benes Visioned Next War On Czech Soil, in Lecture To Interviewer Last Year

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

LATEST AMONG eastern Europe's exiled Peasant Party leaders to invest his literary earnings in real estate is Stanislaw Mikolajczyk. Poland's former Premier, who recently authored a dramatic series of newspaper articles, has put part of his profits into a Washington house. He'll move in shortly and be in close contact with the other chiefs from behind the iron curtain countries. Mme. Mikolajczyk will remain in England, probably for another year, until their son finishes his studies at Oxford.

Meanwhile, with the iron curtain about to clang down on Czechoslovakia, it would not be surprising to have Edouard Benes, the Czech President, bob up in Washington. However, the clever M. Benes, though he sticks to his difficult job, is a very sick man. He's suffering from diabetes, which makes an operation for certain glandular difficulties impossible. Small, increasingly frail, his condition is such that he cannot sleep for more than an hour or two without waking.

M. Benes is one of Europe's most experienced statesmen. During the First World War, when still a comparatively young man, he fled from his homeland, then part of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, to assist Thomas Garrigues Masaryk in liberating and establishing Czechoslovakia as an independent country. He was Foreign Minister from 1919 to 1935, President from 1935 to 1938, resuming this office after Czechoslovakia was freed from the Nazis.

BENES

Interview With Benes

A LITTLE OVER a year ago, this department, then in Prague, had the privilege of interviewing M. Benes. A smartly uniformed soldier, beret cocked over ear, saluted as we entered the Hradcany Palace. Wafted upstairs in a tiny boxlike elevator, we checked our overcoat. It was so cold we could see our breath.

We were ushered into a large salon partially warmed by a jumbo white porcelain stove. The heavy Louis XV furniture was painted white, upholstered with crimson brocade. In a corner was a huge, shiny, complicatedly inlaid desk which the usher said once belonged to Maria Theresa.

Potted begonias stood on the window sills. Through the glass, double paned against cold, one could see gray-towered Prague and the winding Vlatava River. Within a few minutes we were shown into M. Benes' office. Furniture, stove, begonias were the same, but next to the window was a leather-topped table used as a desk, at the far end a blackboard, topped by a rolled map.

Slip of the Tongue

M. BENES, in striped trousers, morning coat, his small mustache carefully waxed, looked elegant as his surroundings. M. Benes had a cold, I had a cold. Clutching a box of Kleenex, I offered it to him, broke the ice. He spoke fluent, sometimes quaintly phrased English. I asked him a single question. He took an hour and a half to answer it. Part of the time M. Benes stood before a map of Europe, emphasizing his points by tapping it with a ruler. The question was, "At the United Nations, why do the Czechs always vote with the Russians?"

Most interesting to us was M. Benes' slip of the tongue. He had commenced with a flat statement that there'd be no new war. An hour later, in explaining a point, he remarked almost casually that the next war would be fought on Czech territory. When we drew attention to this slip, he smiled, shrugged his shoulders, hurried on with what he was saying.

When we left, a delegation, all formally dressed in frock coats, was standing in the outer room. They glanced at us coldly. M. Benes had evidently kept them waiting too long.

Mme. Benes, incidentally, would make a hit in Washington. As a young girl she was a midinette—sewed hats, delivered boxes for a milliner. But she has grown in stature with her husband's political prominence and is now as chic as she is charming. Petite, gray-haired Mme. Benes goes in for tailored suits with ruffly jabots, plain hats, beautiful shoes and gloves.

MacArthur Saga

RECENTLY, up on the Hill, there was talk of bringing General MacArthur back from Japan for a spot of testifying. So Washington dinner table chit-chat once again centered about the handsome general. A colonel, who had been his aide for seven years, told a nice story.

MacARTHUR

Back in the '20s, when MacArthur was superintendent of West Point, he and the colonel, who was then a second lieutenant, were motoring at night back from New York to the Military Academy. On a lonely stretch of road, two masked bandits stopped the car. With a flourish of pistols they opened the door, ordered hands up. Instinctively, the lieutenant upped his hands, then, looking around, was amazed to see MacArthur sitting quietly, arms folded across his chest.

"Up with them!" growled the thug ominously. MacArthur didn't budge. "I'm a brigadier general in the United States Army," he drawled, "and no one can force me to put up my hands!"

The bandit, his confidence obviously shattered, lowered his gun uncertainly, then, without a word, backed out, slamming the door.

Soviet Army Day Celebrated At Embassy Party for Military

Military men of Washington gathered in the ballroom of the Soviet Embassy yesterday at a party celebrating the thirtieth anniversary of the Soviet army. Over 200 guests were greeted betwen 6 and 8 o'clock by the Assistant Military Attache and Mme. Galkovsky and the Naval Attache and Mme. Glinkov.

A buffet supper was served with cocktails from a long table centered with red gladioli and tall epergnes of fruit. There were platters of ham, roast beef, lobster, salmon and pate de foi gras, and different salads, ices and cakes. The display rivaled any anniversary ever celebrated at the Embassy.

The Ambassador, Alexander Semenovich Panyushkin, mingled with his guests, conversing in English with the aid of an interpreter. Mme. Panyushkin, he said, has been detained in Moscow because of the illness of one of their children. The Novikovs, he believed to be in Moscow. When he left Moscow, he said, the former Ambassador was in a hospital.

Mrs Bradley There

Mrs. Omar Bradley dropped by for a few minutes, and Col. Prior Palmer of the British Embassy was there with his bride, the former Lady Doreen Hope. In a group toasting each other were the Polish Ambassador, Josef Winiewicz; the Jugoslavian Ambassador, Sava N. Kosanovic; the Hungarian Minister, Rustem Vambery and the Russian Ambassador.

Among the Americans at the party were Admiral and Mrs. Felix Johnson, Capt. and Mrs. A. C. J. Savalot, and Lieut. Gen. Raymond McLean. Several representatives from the Czechoslovakian Embassy were present, including the Military and Air Attache and Mme. Schejbal, and the Assistant Military Attache, Antonin Novak and Jan Hajsman.

The Ambassador of Finland, Dr. K. T. Jutila attended, and the Military Attache of the Norwegian Embassy, Col. Otto Kjersing Munthe-Kaas. Others included representatives from the Mexican Embassy, the Iranian Embassy, the Netherlands Embassy, the Egyptian Embassy, the Canadian Embassy, the Australian Embassy and the Indian Embassy.

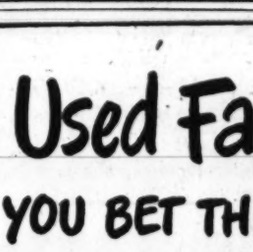
Used Fats?
YOU BET THEY'RE STILL NEEDED!

Lady, tie a string around your finger to remember your used fats are still needed to help ease the greatest shortage of fats and oils in the world's history. Our government says the supply isn't nearly enough to meet today's industrial needs. One way you can help prevent this supply from getting too low, is to turn in used fats.

You say you re-use them for cooking? Good! But, there are always a few drops left after that to save. What about trying wartime tricks again, like melting down fat trimmings, skimming gravies? You'll salvage double!



Remember, too, no other kitchen waste can be turned into cash . . . and how cash counts in these days of high food costs. The prices butchers pay for used fats are way up, on the average. So don't throw your fats out . . . turn 'em in!

BPW National President Feted Here

Miss Sally Butler, national and international president of the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club was honored at a tea yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Marguerite Rawalt. Later a buffet supper was given at the Wardman Park Hotel in honor of Miss Butler, who came on from Indianapolis, Ind., for the occasion.

In a speech after dinner Miss Butler urged greater participation of women in world affairs. Women of other countries, she said, were accepting the challenge better than American women, and she pointed to the fact that France now has 25 women in its law making bodies and Italy has 35 women in the Senate.

The speaker went on to say that if a woman's influence is so important in a home, it must be needed outside as well. In the past, Miss Butler admitted, women were not equipped for positions in world affairs, but with years of training behind them, she said, they are now ready to take their place with the leaders of the world.

At the tea before dinner there were a number of representatives from the different clubs of Washington. Dr. Irma Gene Nevins, president of the District Business and Professional Women's Club, was there, and Miss Olive H. Huston, executive secretary of the National Federation of the EPW. Also, Mrs. G. R. Wilhelm, president of the District branch of the American Association of University Women; Miss Rose Robison Cowen, president of the District Soroptimist Club; Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, and Mrs. Howard Nichols, president of the YWCA.

AAUW Hears Talk On 'New Land Patterns"

Problems caused by decentralization of cities, and suggested solutions to those problems were discussed by Frederick M. Babcock yesterday afternoon in a talk given before members of the American Association of University Women. The talk entitled, "New Land Patterns in American Cities," was given at the clubhouse at 1:30 p. m.

Cities should not be rebuilt or restored, Mr. Babcock said, but built anew, wtih positive objectives. This new building of cities, the speaker asserted, should be in accord with flexible master plans of organization, and not frozen plans of outline.

Mr. Babcock does project analyses and real estate study for publications, and has seryed on the faculty of Northwestern University, George Washington University and the University of Michigan. Mrs. Sidney Evans introduced the speaker.

Spring Fashion Show Benefits Cancer Clinic

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

"A bit skimpy, if you ask me," says Una O'Connor, Irish comedienne of stage and screen, who "modeled" in yesterday's fashion show. Wearing a period peignoir of intricate design, she takes a dim view of the fragile black lace worn by the model at left

By Peggy Preston

MRS. TRUMAN, along with approximately 800 other Washington women, donned a spring bonnet yesterday and went to a fashion show.

Scene was the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel where every seat was taken for the luncheon and style show presented by the Ladies Aid to Garfield Hospital in cooperation with the Washington Fashion Group. Proceeds are for the Cancer Prevention Clinic.

Entitled "Washington in Spring," the show was one of the most ambitious staged here this season. Nine establishments participated, showing costumes by prominent "name" designers for every hour of the day. Helen Vogt Van Slyke, beauty editor of Glamour magazine, was here from New York to serve as commentator. An added attraction was a skit by the famous Irish commedienne, Una O'Connor of the cast of "The Linden Tree," which opened last night at the National Theater.

Miss O'Connor "modeled" a peignoir of the 1890 era, heavily embroidered and lined with satin and dripping with lace ruffles. Her hat, of her own design, consisted of a heart-shaped pin cushion which customarily rests on her dressing room table. From it sprang a couple of brown feathers.

Admitting that this was her first fling at modeling, the diminutive Una cast a wary eye at the pencil slim professional models before stepping out on the runway. "Somebody give a push," she said. "For the first time in my life I've got stage fright."

Spring costumes blossomed among the large audience as well as on the runway. Mrs. Truman looked trim in a slim, gray worsted suit, white tailored blouse and short fur jacket on which was pinned a corsage of violets. Her hat was a navy straw sailor, trimmed with a wide green ribbon and froth of matching tulle.

Seated with the First Lady at the head table were Signora Tarchiani, wife of the Italian Ambassador; Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, Mrs. Andrew Parker, chairman of the benefit; Miss Gertrude V. D. Prisley, regional director of the Fashion Group; Dr. Leonard Scheele, newly appointed chief surgeon, United States Public Health Service, and William Castle, president of Garfield Hospital.

Mrs. George Mesta occupied a balcony table with a group of guests. Others in the throng were Mrs. Robert A. Lovett, Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Mrs. Walter W. Boyd, Mrs. F. Eberhard Haynes, Mrs. Wilbur J. Karr, Mrs. Woodson Houghton, Mrs. John Price Wetherill 3d, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, and Mrs. H. Conger Pratt.

Present also were the 50 members of the Fashion Group, including the committee in charge of the show; Mrs. Theodore Ives Messenger, chairman; Miss Jean MacColl, Mrs. Marion Tolson, Miss Walsh, Miss Eleni Sakes, and Miss Prisley.

Children Reflect The Parents' Moods

There is no mirror that reflects so much as a child, the mood of the parent with whom he is. If mother is cheerful, so is baby, but if mother is upset, how quickly baby senses it and is anything but happy. Perhaps that is how so many mothers learn patience.

Ways to Keep Your Gloves Looking Well

Remove gloves by pulling them down over the hand, rather than tugging at the fingertips. This latter method is very apt to break the stitches and spoil the shape of the gloves. Now straighten the gloves out and blow in them to inflate the leather and let any perspiration dry out. A dredging of talcum powder every so often is also a good method of keeping the inside of the glove in order and sweet-smelling.

Your Questions on Homemaking

How can I prevent or remove unpleasant odors and discolorations in the armpits of rayon crepe dresses? Regular use of deodorants and frequent cleaning of the dresses does not obviate this condition. On return from the cleaners, they still retain an unpleasant odor.
H. A. P.

Dry cleaning fluid does not remove perspiration from clothes. To get it out, water and soapsuds must be used. You should be able to improve the condition of your dresses by sponging them under the arms (and over an absorbent pad) with warm soapsuds. Rinse by sponging with clear warm water. Of course, this may affect the dye in the material, so it would be a good idea to try the soapsuds first on an inside seam. Your dry cleaner may do this job for you when he cleans the dresses if you ask him. This method will get rid of the odor and may improve the appearance of the stains. However, old perspiration stains can seldom be removed entirely.

Another method of ridding dresses of underarm odor is with pepsin powder. This is particularly satisfactory on light-colored dresses. Perspiration stains are sponged with warm water to which a few drops of vinegar has been added, then the pepsin is sprinkled over them and worked well into the cloth. After it stands for an hour or so (being kept moist constantly), the powder is brushed off and the spot rinsed well.

Certain rayons are much more likely than others to take on an unpleasant odor from perspiration. About the only way to avoid both perspiration stains and odors is through regular use of a good nonperspirant.

In the article that appeared in The Washington Post the other day about Mrs. Miles' food budget, the prices were lower than those I find at my store. Since her husband is a Naval officer, I wonder if the food was purchased at a Navy commissary? G. T.

No, the foods listed were all bought from a local chain grocery store or a milk dealer. Several of the items—including the shrimp and frozen peas—were a "special" at the store the day they were bought, and therefore cheaper. Low cost of a number of other items resulted from large scale buying.

I have two slipcovers—one for a couch in a light blue with a two-inch stripe in pink, the other for a club chair in a solid dusty pink. Both materials are cotton. I don't like either color at all and would like to do something about dyeing them a deeper tone, preferably hunter's green. Would it be worthwhile to have this done professionally? The broad stripe in the couch cover would show up even after dyeing, wouldn't it? J. A. C.

If the slipcover for the chair is made of good, strong material and is not very worn, it should certainly be worthwhile to have it redyed in a color you like. About the stripes, they are likely to show a little even if the material is dyed dark green. Most cleaners bleach stripes and figures before redyeing, which keeps them from showing so much. The faint shadow of a stripe in the dark cover may not be too objectionable anyway, especially if the couch is not used in a bright lighted part of the room.

How can I make jelly out of sweetened home canned blackberries? I would like to strain them and use a pectin product to make them jell. L. S. M.

In using commercial pectin, it is wisest to follow exactly the directions that come with it. Try to ascertain just how much sugar was added to the blackberries when they were canned and deduct this from the amount called for in the directions. If you get too much sugar in the mixture, the jelly will get weak and syrupy. Too little sugar, on the other hand, makes jelly that is too firm.

I have a dresser scarf that had perfume spilled on it. I have tried washing and bleaching it, but the yellow stain remains. Can you tell me some other things that may remove the spot? M. H. B.

Old perfume stains are almost impossible to remove, and also those caused by certain types of perfume. You might try sponging with alcohol. Or, if the scarf is white cotton, put salt on the spot, squeeze lemon juice on it, and bleach in the sun. It's doubtful that either of these will be effective, however. If perfume stains are coming out, they usually can be removed from washable fabrics with soap and water when fresh.

Could you tell me how to take black crayon marks off? I have some on green and white wall paper. D. M. H.

Make a soft paste of fuller's earth or corn starch mixed with carbon tetrachloride or any noninflammable spot-removing liquid. Cover the spot with a thick layer of this paste (about one quarter inch) and allow to dry. When thoroughly dry, remove with a soft brush. If all of the stain is not removed with the first application, repeat. If the paper is old and soiled the area around the stain should first be cleaned with wall paper cleaner before applying the paste. If this isn't done, the paste will leave a clean place surrounded by a soiled ring.

Capital's Teen-Agers Flock To Nancy Pepper's Show

IT'S HARD to say who is the most fashion conscious in Washington this spring—the teenager or her mother. Both are attending style shows in droves.

But yesterday in the huge Presidential Room at the Statler Hotel it looked as though the juniors had an edge on their elders when it comes to setting a record attendance. Literally hundreds of them poured into the room for the "Calling All Girls Fashion Show," staged by the Hecht Co., and featuring Nancy Pepper, columnist and author for the junior set.

By the time the doors closed, there wasn't a chair left and the "standing room only" sign was down. While most of the guests appeared to be around 15 years of age, many of them could have been no older than 12. They came in groups, whispering to one another as they scrambled eagerly for good seats on the aisles.

High School Models

Adding zest to their holiday outing was the group of models who were selected from each of the city's junior and senior high schools. The audience applauded wildly as their own representatives walked down the runway. Included were models from Calvin Coolidge, Immaculata Seminary, Central, Montgomery Blair, Western, Notre Dame Academy, Wilson and others.

Theme of the show was a dramatization of Miss Pepper's cheerful book of verse, "Teenage Blues," in which she shows her young readers how to laugh at their tragedies. Major woes of the young set, according to Miss Pepper are:

1. Not enough telephone calls.
2. Being without a date on Saturday night.
3. No bid to the prom until the 11th hour.
4. Being a WAD—without a date—ever.

Clothes Inspire Confidence

In order to overcome such difficulties as these, a girl needs confidence and assurance, according to Nancy Pepper. Clothes can help a great deal, she pointed out in her running commentary on the show.

Inexpensive garments for classroom and ballroom were shown, as well as many new accessory gadgets that are the special delight of teenagers. There were costumes guaranteed to "keep the telephone lines busy"; suits for young career girls and date dresses called "Party Palpitations."

"I hate to eat and run, Mrs. Smith . . . but I don't want to be late for my dinner."

You're Not Too Old

How to Get In Good Standing

By Ida Jean Kain

Whoever originated that phrase, "throw back your shoulders," has probably gone to his final resting place long since . . . but I doubt if he won his wings! He started a lot of trouble and got us humans off to a wretchedly poor start. Lift your chest . . . keep shoulders relaxed! The structure of the shoulder joint provides great freedom . . . until you try to throw the shoulders back. Shoulders were not meant to be put behind you, for that throws your posture out of kilter.

If you got off to a bad start and have been jogging along that way for years, you may think it's a bit late to do much about it. But let me tell you about one courageous woman who did. Better still, she'll tell you.

"I have been doing your exercises for around three years now. Since I am well past 50 years of age, I think I have proved to my own satisfaction and well being that bad posture habits or any other bad habits can be overcome even in later life if one sets out to do it. And the result is more joy in living, and greater efficiency.

"Formerly my circulation was poor, my muscles lacked tone and I felt dragged out. My posture was poor, very poor, resulting in spinal curvature. Imagine my surprise last Sunday when a lady admired my straightness!

To find how you line up, take this text-exercise:

Lie on back on floor, legs straight down, arms down at sides. See if you can pull the small of your back in to make contact with floor. Then raise arms up and back over head and see if you can touch one entire arm to floor. If you can't get the small of back to floor, you need to exercise to tone the abdominal muscles, and to practice the up-and-in pull with the front abdominal muscles and the down-and-under pull with the hip muscles to lessen the incurve at small of back. Inability to touch arms to floor indicates a rounded upper back. It takes time to straighten out, but you'll find the following exercises of real value in correcting both posture faults.

Position: Lie on back on floor, arms down at sides, feet elevated to chair seat, legs straight.

Movement: Pull up and in with lower abdominal muscles to press small of back against floor. Flex alternate knees to chest as you circle arms on floor without letting wrists and elbows come off floor. Swing arms and leg back to position. Repeat 6 times, later 12.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Quiet as Mouse When Sober, Man Gives Wife Bulk of His Earnings on Pay Day, Then Gets Drunk and Terrorizes Family; How Curb Him?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Money plays an important part in the success or failure of marriage, it seems. I have had a problem concerning money since we married eight years ago.

My husband isn't the money-making kind, so we have to skimp and save on his inadequate salary. We have three children of our own and are caring for another child, helping him through school.

Since last fall I've been doing part-time work to help meet expenses. The job doesn't pay much, but with my earnings I do manage to buy badly needed clothing for all of us, including my husband, and occasionally apply something to outstanding debts.

My husband gets paid twice a month and always gives his check to me, but always demands some spending money from it; and he always spends this money on liquor. I hate the stuff and he is the rowdy type. After one drink he always wants more and seems bent on stirring up trouble.

Beats His Wife; Once Used Knife

HE COMES home angrily looking for something to fight about, making the children cry with fear, as they never know whether it means black eyes for them or me; but usually I am his victim. He has beaten me many times and once even took a knife to me, leaving scars.

When he is sober he is quiet as a mouse and assures me it won't happen again; but next pay day it's always the same and we live in dread of his alcoholic outbursts. Should I deny him this extra money the family needs so badly and have him tell others I am a selfish penny-pincher? Or should I relent to his pleadings?

He seems to think when a man works hard he is entitled to some money for pleasure. But is he, at the family's expense? I, too, work hard, but every cent I get goes for the family upkeep; and I would gladly give him extra money if only he used it wisely. What should I do? D. N.

Man Is Under Great Strain

DEAR D. N.: You call this a problem concerning money which dates from the start of marriage; and impute it to the fact that your husband isn't "the money-making kind." But as the story unfolds, we hear that he is a periodic drinker nowadays and savagely hostile to his family, especially his wife, when in his cups.

Indirectly, you reveal something of yourself in the following: You emphasize having to skimp on his inadequate salary to provide for a family of five and help another child through school; mention that since last fall you've been working part-time to help meet expenses; give a picture of him (in his sober senses) meekly deferring to you as the head of the household, turning his check over to you, etc.

All of which suggests that basically the problem consists in this: (1) You married a man whose mediocre earning ability is only one facet of his vague general inadequacy to take on responsibilities and rise in the world in smart ambitious go-getter fashion. (2) yet you've never had the reality-sense to accept him for what he is and try, by constructive use of mind and heart in the leader role, to happily make-do with him.

Wife's Severity Creates Tension

INSTEAD, you've been registering tense vexation with this provider—showing all the while his economic burdens have been growing and living costs rising crazily,—which means that he has been the target of pressure from all sides, hence in his soul an increasingly discouraged, frightened, resentful "little guy" who sees no relief, reward or thanks forthcoming from any quarter.

In consquence you have his escapist drinking on pay days; also his grudge-bearing abuse of you when under the influence,—the only safety-valves for relaxing inner tension that occur to him in the circumstances.

Understanding is half of cure, the saying goes; and if he isn't a confirmed alcoholic, you can do much to dissolve the pay-day problem of waste and violence by changing your whole attitude from demanding, dissatisfied bossy severity to consistently kindly sympathetic appreciation of his routine wage-earning performance. In this he does the best he can, and angels can do no more than that.

For the rest: Assuming it's true that he would stay sober if denied cash-to-blow on pay days, and that his worst reaction to refusal would be to grumble publicly about your thrift, then in heaven's name keep temptation out of his pocket—but be fond as well as firm about it.

Little Girl Still Waits For Father

The Washington Post
MRS. MARY DIAMOND

Back in November, 1946, a starry-eyed little girl left her father in Greece to accompany her mother on a long-awaited journey to the United States where her Daddy promised to join them in several months.

Almost a year and a half have passed, and still he waits in Athens for admittance to this country.

The stars are gone for 11-year-old Barbara Diamond, a citizen of this country although she was born in Greece, because of a law during part of the 1930s granting citizenship to children of American mothers in foreign countries. Her cheerful songs are gone. She is "sick inside" because of the unhappy separation.

Married in Greece

Her mother, Mrs. Mary Diamond, with whom she lives at 1106 9th st. nw., is miserable, too. Although her husband, Christos, was placed in the first preference quota as far back as July, 1946, it may be years before he can join his family here, because of the many persons seeking admittance.

Mrs. Diamond, born in Turkey but an American citizen since her parents were naturalized here when she was a child, went to Greece for a prolonged visit in 1933. There she married Christos Diamond. Unable to return to this country during the war, she was finally granted readmittance in 1946 and allowed to bring Barbara with her. She returned only because she understood her husband would soon be able to join her, she explained.

Barbara Studying Hard

Although she has kept in constant touch with the State Department and the American Consul in Athens, she has little hope that she will see her husband soon. Yet she does not want to leave this country again. All she can do is hope.

Barbara, meanwhile, is studying hard in the sixth grade at Thomson School, where she has learned to speak excellent English in less than a year. Her spare time is used for letters to Dad.

Future Air Traffic Control Is Outlined

By the United Press

The shape of aeronautical things to come, with electronics all but replacing human handling of air traffic, was outlined yesterday in proposals prepared for President Truman's air coordinating committee.

The radio technical commission for aeronautics has proposed a $1,113,000,000 outlay over 15 years to install futuristic devices for automatic control of swiftly expanding civil and military air traffic in all weather conditions.

Present Facilities Inadequate

Developed over the past eight months at the Presidential committee's request, the commission's program comprises a 139-page document. Substance of the proposals has been given the Joint Congressional Aviation Policy Board and may be recommended in part in that group's report on air policy, to be submitted March 1.

The commission found present facilities for controlling air traffic woefully inadequate. Its proposed cure, staggering in its dimensions, is probably the most important work of its kind in aeronautical history.

At the end of 15 years, the Nation would be blanketed with air tracks extended up to 20,000 feet. Every plane moving along these tracks would be visible, regardless of weather, to ground-based radar machinery dotting the country at specified control areas. Communications would be relayed by automatic means as well as by voice.

Proposed System Outlined

There would be high-speed airlanes for express traffic, entrance lanes, cross-roads, climbing and descending points and emergency routes. There would be no waiting for landings at airports. All flights would have automatically reserved landing times and would move through a block system with constant checks on their rate of progress. Every pilot would have a television-like picture of surrounding traffic and weather conditions ahead.

"With the anticipated increase in aircraft," the commission's report says, "automatic means of control are necessary as the problem will exceed human capabilities."

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

This Guy Is Just Too "Smart" To Be Cheated

Jack Spates, Yellow Cab driver No. 169, tells a perfectly wonderful story about a fare he picked up at Union Station.

The passenger quickly let it be known that he'd heard all about our taxi zones, and "the way you Washington cab drivers cheat your customers."

As Jack drove out to the Broadmoor in resigned silence, his fare studied the zone map carefully and at frequent intervals repeated the announcement, "You're not going to cheat me; I'm counting the zones."

When they arrived at the Broadmoor the fare said:

"That's three zones, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir," replied Jack. "Three zones."

"Okay then," stated the passenger with finality, "that's 30 cents for the first zone, 50 cents for the second, and 70 cents for the third—a total of $1.50, and you don't get a penny more."

EASY MONEY

Nickels and dimes have almost been driven out of circulation in some Washington neighborhoods.

Most of our large apartment developments provide coin-in-the-slot laundry machines, and housewives need an endless supply of nickels and dimes to keep the machines going.

Even neighborhood stores can't keep enough change on hand to meet the insatiable demand. There's always a shortage.

So Arlington Cleaners, with a fine sense of public relations, has instructed its drivers to carry extra change, and to help customers and noncustomers alike in the "stricken" areas.

Handbills are being distributed to publicize this service. Joseph M. Gambatese (formerly of the Labor Department and now with McGraw-Hill) finds a chuckle in the way the notices are worded:

"Whenever you need dimes for the washing machine, ask the Arlington Cleaner man. He carries them for you. No obligation."

If there's really no obligation, I'll join Joe in saying: "Gosh—gimmie a handful."

INDICTMENT

The following communication has been received from Lionel E. Belanger of 3138 17th st. nw.:

"As a newcomer to Washington, I wonder how you natives feel about your local eating places. Maybe some of your readers can help me find out.

"I'd like their reaction to the glaring evidence of filth so prominently displayed at most lunch counters, cafeterias and restaurants.

"I have found very few places where one can drink from clean glasses, and the silverware is dirty practically every place I go.

"I've watched patrons rub their silverware on their napkins in an effort to erase some of the residue left by previous customers. But I've never seen anybody complain to the management.

"What makes them that way? Don't they object to such unsanitary conditions?"

I dunno, Lionel. I can speak only for myself—and I certainly do object. Regular District Liners will probably recall the many items which I have written on this subject.

Personally, I think it would be a fine idea to have a "grading" system here. Several cities now use it with great success.

The local Health Department inspects and grades all eating places, awarding an "A" to those which are exceptionally clean, a "B" to those which meet minimum requirements, and a "C" to those which fail to pass muster.

Restaurants which get an "A" display their grade prominently in the front window, and in their newspaper ads. Those who get a "B" bend every effort to improve the grade on the next inspection.

And those with a grade of "C" quickly discover that business goes elsewhere—and they are forced to clean up by the pressure of public disapproval.

MAIL BAG

"Your clipping about boiling eggs in Cold Water was mailed to me," writes the Luedders Directory Service of Coldwater, Mich.

"Did you know that this city has a Cold Water Steam Laundry?"

PERSONAL NOTES

Henry F. Canby, 4604 Sleaford rd., Bethesda, Md.: Sorry, but we can't take "orders" for pets. I'm sure that if you watch the Give-Aways for a few days you'll find the kitten you're looking for.

TREASURER'S REPORT

"We each put up 10 cents and wagered that we could pick the winner of your Government Girl contest," writes R. Fisher of 1401 Fairmont st. nw.

"But we were all wrong, and nobody won the jackpot. So here's the 50 cents for your Children's Hospital Fund."

Streetcar tokens have been received from: Joan Ruth Padgett, 1513 Neal st. ne.; the girls at Kappa Kappa Gamma; Mrs. C. W. Wessle, 1800 N. 16th st., Arlington, Va.; Ida Elaine James, 4600 N. Chelsea dr., Bethesda, Md.; Mrs. Philip Marcus, 2902 Allison st., Mount Rainier, Md.; Sergt. Harry M. Greenfield, 520th AAFBU; Mrs. J. A. Slifer, 3142 Military rd. nw.

CRITIC

Mrs. R. H. Lockwood of 3871 Newark st. nw. writes:

FAMOUS SPOT

O, how we hate the ice and snow
And driving in low gear.
But when it's gone just hear us crow
That "Washington slipped here."

Leonard Lyons . . .

(Leonard Lyons' guest columnist today is Fannie Hurst.)

NEW YORK CITY first dawned upon me from the prow of a boat.

I was 17 and an immigrant from the Middle West!. A Missouri immigrant, seeing the Metropolis for the first time.

I stood beside my father at the prow, or whatever a ferry-boat substitutes for a prow. So far as I was concerned, it might have been a fairy-boat, which had connected with the St. Louis train in Hoboken. No foreigner arriving to our shores for the first time could have thrilled more eloquently than I the first moment I laid eyes on New York. She overwhelmed me with love at first sight, and has remained a sweetheart ever since.

It was not an ideal day for arrival. Only the uppermost reac : of skyscrapers showed through a fog which twisted itself about the lower portions of the city. The effect, however, was what New York is under all circumstances. Dramatic! High chateaus seemed to rest on clouds which foamed gently underneath, as if sustaining them on buoyancy. Papa, who was born in Mississippi, and a little ponderously dedicated to the idea of "See America First," said: "According to the last census, the population of New York is about four million. Its chief industries are . . ."

Harbor whistles blew. By now I could discern the snake-twist of elevated trains. The design of the city and a sudden sense of light and movement and color and hustle and bustle came boldly through the fog. I was city-bred, but no hustle or bustle I had ever experienced was quite as heady as this.

We bumped into the slip. The miracle of New York, which has never ceased being that, began.

In the bright years since; in the tragic, the glad and the immeasurably sad years since the day New York rose for me out of the unwinding sheets of her fog, the miracle has continued. Human in its warmth, granite in its grandeur.

The terrific vitality that lurks in the padding walk of a lion is in New York. You set foot on its asphalt, and something that has been quiescent in you begins to tingle.

People to whom this tingle is an irritant are the ones who say: "I wouldn't live in New York if you gave it to me."

Those to whom it is a challenge and an invitation to the dance feel themselves suddenly ready to meet vitality with vitality.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Vandenberg Is Dewey 2d Choice

By Drew Pearson

Hottest report on the political battlefront is that Gov. Tom Dewey will swing his supporters to Senator Arthur Vandenberg if Dewey gets caught in a convention deadlock with Senator Taft and can't get the GOP nomination himself.

Thom. E. Dewey

Despite repeated disavowals of White House ambitions, Vandenberg will have strong "silent" backing at the Philadelphia convention—particularly among the so-called Willkieites in GOP ranks, most of whom are now supporting Dewey, but who are ready to swing to Vandenberg as their second choice because of the Michigan Senator's broad-gauged stand on foreign affairs.

Those close to Vandenberg, however, insist that he does not want the nomination. The Michigan Senator will be 64 years old next month and feels the Presidency would be too great a burden, though a recent physical checkup showed him to be in good shape.

Vandenberg is also upset about the health of his wife, who has been ill. He left a Lincoln Day dinner early the other night to rush to her bedside.

Inside betting, however, is that Vandenberg can probably get the nomination, and that he will accept if a deadlocked convention drafts him.

Brass-Hat Publicity

The House Expenditures Committee has unearthed new and interesting facts showing that military leaders are talking through their brass hats when they deny they are using public funds to propagandize for peacetime conscription.

There are only 650 trainees at the Army's Universal Military Training Camp at Fort Knox, Ky., during a six-month cycle. Yet every week the Army publishes 5000 copies of the camp newspaper, UMT Pioneer. Of these, 1000 copies are distributed at Fort Knox, while the remaining 4000 are mailed throughout the country.

Unlike the typical camp newspaper, devoted to local news items of interest to soldiers on the post, the Pioneer is filled with articles extolling the benefits of compulsory training of American youth.

The congressional committee has also discovered that no other Army enterprise has received as much publicity from Army public relations as the effort to sell UMT to the people. In the last year more than 75,000 UMT pamphlets have been published, plus 9150 mimeographed articles and more than 30,000 other publications.

The paper cost of this propaganda blizzard alone amounted to $5218, congressional investigators have learned.

Jubilant GOP

News that Henry Wallace's candidate, Leo Isacson, stole a congressional seat away from the Democratic machine in the Bronx reached one jubilant group of GOP Congressmen while holding an off-the-record, round-table discussion. Massachusetts' John Heselton announced the New York results.

"Here's some welcome news for the Republican Party," he grinned.

Speaker Joe Martin was so astounded he asked to have the announcement read again. After thoroughly digesting it, he predicted it would force President Truman to shift to the left.

"I don't think Wallace will come back into the Democratic fold," the Speaker added, "unless Truman is replaced on the ticket. And there is no chance for that."

Cutting the Veterans

President Truman hit the ceiling the other day when Representative John McCormack of Massachusetts, Democratic whip, informed him that the Veterans' Administration faced another sizable personnel cut due to lack of operating funds. Dropping this personnel, McCormack warned, would mean a breakdown of vital veterans' functions, including disability payments.

"Well, why hasn't the agency asked Congress for a deficiency appropriation?" inquired the President. "That's the usual procedure."

"They can't," replied McCormack, "because the House Appropriations Committee exacted a promise from VA officials that they wouldn't ask for a deficiency fund at the time the committee approved the agency's regular appropriation for this fiscal year."

For years it has been customary for executive departments of the Government that run short of money to come back to Congress later in the year for deficiency appropriations. But the GOP Congress has served notice that "deficit" grants would not be voted. Having long been familiar with this practice as a Senator, the President exploded.

"I've never heard of such a thing," he said. "The committee had no authority to do that."

Truman instructed an aide to tell Budget Director James E. Webb to notify the VA to "put in" a deficiency request at once.

"We'll have a showdown on this," remarked Truman, crisply. "It's carrying economy a little too far."

Note—Dropping Veterans' Administration personnel, including nurses and doctors in the middle of the year, means that they are almost impossible to hire back again when more money is voted for the new year.
